REPORT AUSTRIA WILL YIELD TO ITALY

Neglect Killed Many Lusitania Victims

REPORT VIENNA AGREES

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, May 11.—Austria is reported to have accepted at the eleventh hour all the demands made by Italy, thus averting war between the two countries, at least for the present.

It is known that an important message arrived from Vienna during the night, and was immediately taken to Foreign Minister Sonnino by the secretary of Prince Von Buelow, the German ambassador, who has served as intermediary in the Austro-Italian negotiations.

Immediately after the call of the German attache a report was circulated that Austria had accepted all of Italy's demands. This was semi-officially confirmed from German diplomatic circles, it being stated that "Austria has made concessions of a most important character."

Austria's reply to the demands of Italy is said to have been drawn up yesterday at a four-hour conference between Baron Burian and Count Tisza, respectively Austrian and Hungarian Premiers at Vienna.

What was purported to have been an authoritative outline of Italy's demands of Austria was given in a dispatch from Rome on March 15, as follows:

A sweep of territory to the north and east which would extend her boundaries around the northern end of the Adriatic as far south as Fiume on the eastern coast. This would include the Austrian naval base at Pola as well as the Provinces of Trent and Trieste.

In detail Italy desired the entire Provinces of Trent, bringing her frontier to Venoste, Passiris and Breonie, including the districts of Revereto, Trent, Bosen, Meran, Bressanone and Brunecck; to the east she desired to extend her frontier to the Julian Alps, including the Provinces of Gorits and Istria, with the districts of Tolmein, Gorits, Trieste, Pola and Fiume. In addition to this she demanded the Dalmatian Islands, especially Veglia, Cherso, Lunga, Brazza, Lesina, Curzola, Meleda and Lissa.

Find $50,000 Cash on Lusitania Victims

QUEENSTOWN, May 11.—The police have taken possession of $50,000 in cash, many drafts and a considerable amount of jewelry found on the dead.

THE $100,000,000 LUSITANIA BABY

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Jr., whose father perished with the Lusitania. Baby Alfred is two and a half years old and the first child of Mr. Vanderbilt's second marriage.

Willard's Children —and Yours

JESS WILLARD has four children. He is training them to be strong, healthy citizens.

He does not say to them, "Do So and So at 9:30; do Such and Such at 10:45," but he has general rules for them which he followed to his own advantage, as you know.

And they are mighty healthy children.

The champion tells all about the health-giving things his children do in a series of articles in the Sunday AMERICAN, beginning May 16.

If they are good for his children, they are good for yours—and for you, too.

Read his advice; read and follow it.

You'll be very glad some day—and so will your children.

Remember, the articles begin in the AMERICAN Sunday, May 16.

Better put your order in NOW.

Asks Germany for Full Information

By International News Service.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, May 11.—James W. Gerard, United States Ambassador to Germany, has requested the Foreign Minister to furnish him with all the information available as to the torpedoing of the liner Lusitania. This action was taken at the request of the Washington State Department on orders said to have come from President Wilson.

The German government knows that bitter feeling has been aroused in the United States by the destruction of the Lusitania, but it believes that calm reflection in the United States will absolve Germany of blame.

CUNARD CALLS OFF SAILINGS

LONDON, May 11.—The Cunard liner Mauretania will not sail for the United States on May 29. Announcement was today that her sailing had been cancelled.

No Cunard liner will sail for New York on May 15, the date on which the Lusitania was to have started her return trip. The cancellation of the Mauretania's sailing was due to the sinking of the Lusitania.

By LAWRENCE ELLSTON,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

QUEENSTOWN, May 11.—While search for bodies of the Lusitania victims was continued today by tugs, bristling charges of neglect and "rank negligence" piled up against officials who were responsible for the handling of the Cunard liner when she was torpedoed off the south coast of Ireland.

Aroused by widespread criticism, officials of the Admiralty, after a conference today in London, stated that arrangements are being made to recover as many as possible of the bodies.

It is expected that government tugs and possibly destroyers will take part in the search. The bodies of Americans will be embalmed for shipment home. It was reported that if a large collection of bodies of Americans are assembled the United States government may send a warship to carry them home.

1,000 STILL MISSING.

Ambassador W. H. Page has requested all American survivors to communicate with the embassy at London so that relatives and friends in this country and America can be apprised of their safety.

Twenty-eight more bodies have been brought ashore during the past twenty-four hours, ten at Baltimore, two at Castletownsend and sixteen here. Six of those landed at Baltimore are men and four are women, and according to papers found upon the remains two are Americans.

The body of Isane Trumbull was shipped to Bridgeport, Ct., today, and that of C. T. Brodrick to Boston, Mass.

Cardinal O'Connell Praises Speech of the President

Cardinal O'Connell told the State Council of the Knights of Columbus at the Hotel Somerset today that the Philadelphia address of "our calm, noble and high-minded President" was the expression of lofty human sentiment. His remarks upon the presidential attitude came at the close of the Cardinal's address, as follows:

I have just finished reading the address of the President of the United States at Philadelphia last night, and that address ought to be read in ringing tones at your convention and at the meeting of every organization in America.

Here is an expression of sentiment sublimely universal in tone and lofty human sentiment which only makes our love of America greater because it founds itself on the natural love of every human heart for justice and truth and eliminates sectional jealousy and discord.

It is the expression of a noble heart and a truly illumined mind. It is sublimely Catholic and national at the same time—the broad love for our fellow man and the devotion to the country to which we have dedicated ourselves while yearning for that eternal fatherland toward which our faith and hope are leading us. God bless our calm, noble and illumined President.

SEEKS $5,000 IN ALIENATION SUIT

Mrs. Bertha Richardson of Portland, formerly of Lynn, maintains that the formation of an amateur orchestra was the beginning of domestic troubles which she now lays at the door of Miss Marion L. Jones, also of Portland, formerly of Revere. Mrs. Richardson is suing Miss Jones for $5,000 for alleged alienation of the affections of Victor Richardson. Trial of the suit began today before Judge White and jury in Suffolk Superior Court.

Mrs. Richardson says in her declaration and interrogatories, which were read at the opening of the trial today, that her husband was director of this amateur orchestra, and that Miss Jones was the pianist. It was following the formation of the band of musical amateurs, according to Mrs. Richardson, that the alienation she charges against the fair pianist began.

The wife also maintained that Miss Jones was present on a trip of the yacht Nirvana last Summer when Richardson, the orchestra director, was skipper.

The Richardsons were married eight years ago. According to Mrs. Richardson, they separated three years ago.

New Attack on Churchill Policy

By JOHN C. FOSTER.
Special Correspondent of the International News Services.

LONDON, May 11.—First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill's admission in Parliament that the British government cannot furnish armed convoys to protect incoming and outgoing mail and passenger ships from submarine attack is the signal for renewed criticism against him today by his foes. Those hostile to Mr. Churchill and his naval policy declared that the inability of the Admiralty to police the steamer lanes around Great Britain with men-of-war puts merchant ships at the mercy of the German submarines.

The suggestion is now made to have hydroaeroplanes patrol the waters through which transatlantic liners must pass, but it is likely that this plan will be rejected because all England's available sea planes are needed on the North Sea and in the zones of hostilities.

HANDCUFFED MAN ESCAPES IN CROWD

Knocking over people right and left and eluding a crowd of a thousand people who were on his trail, Louis Flint, arrested for shoplifting, and still wearing handcuffs, succeeded in escaping, after he had broken away from Police Inspector William Pelton, about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The chase, which was a long one through Boston's narrowest streets and lanes, caused much excitement and attracted a great crowd in the vicinity of Province court, where Flint finally disappeared.

Flint was arrested in a department store charged with stealing two pairs of shoes and was being escorted to police headquarters by Inspector Pelton. For safety's sake Pelton had handcuffed one of Flint's hands and was holding the other handcuff.

While passing through the Carney building, Flint wrenched himself free and, pursued by Pelton, ran out the back door of the building and up Pemberton square hill. In a few seconds there was a chorus of "stop thief" from several people who did not see the approach of the fleeing man and who, tried to stop him were bowled over.

Flint's course took him down Somerset street to Tremont place, where he climbed the fence into Old Granary burying ground. He climbed the fence again into Tremont street, and ran down Bromfield street, pushing aside all who sought to stop him and with the handcuffs still jingling on his hand.

Followed by the crowd he finally turned up Province court and there disappeared in the alley that leads to Parker's Hotel.

Boston Opera Co. in Bankruptcy Court

The Boston Opera Company, of which Henry Russell was managing director, today filed in the United States District Court a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, giving liabilities of $215,570 and estimated assets of $78,909.

Among the largest creditors listed are:

Henry Russell, contract for services and disbursements on European trip, $19,694.

Randolfo Baroncel of Paris, contract for services, $5,040.

Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, rentals and airlifts, $4,945.76.

Orchestra musicians of 1914 spring and summer, $2,190.

Eben D. Jordan, for loans, accounts and sundry claims, $41,942.

"TOO PROUD TO FIGHT" SPEECH DOESN'T APPLY, SAYS THE PRESIDENT

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The Lusitania tragedy was the sole topic of discussion at an extended meeting of the Cabinet today at which every member was present. It is believed that the President's policy toward Germany was formulated at this session.

Reports are current that an announcement soon will be forthcoming regarding the procedure of the United States. At the Cabinet meeting today the President consulted with his advisers for the first time since the torpedoing of the Lusitania.

A new element in the discussion of the possible policy of the United States was thrown into the situation today. It is believed in some quarters that Germany is aiming to compel the United States to break off diplomatic relations with her so as to cut off American aid to Belgium and all observation by a powerful neutral of the way she treats her prisoners and foreigners within her borders.

It is believed by the sponsors of this theory that Germany does not care to have any of her internal or domestic policies under surveillance by officials of the American embassy in Berlin. Some circles believe that Germany is already impatient over the protection extended to foreigners within her borders by Ambassador Gerrard.

The President made it clear that his speech in Philadelphia last night is not to be construed as indicating what that policy will be.

He declared the sentiments he expressed in his address last night constituted his personal attitude, but were not intended as touching upon a national policy. He added he was thinking entirely of the people he was addressing.

The President at the present time had nothing to add to what he said on Sunday, and he refused to say whether the United States had communicated with the German government regarding the torpedoing of the Lusitania.

CABINET HOLDS LONG SESSION ON CRISIS

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States, today delivered to Secretary of State Bryan the note from the German government made public in Berlin expressing the regret of that government for the loss of American lives in the sinking of the Lusitania.

The ambassador, on leaving the office of the Secretary, declined to answer any questions regarding his call.

Secretary Bryan, who followed the ambassador into the hallway, said: "The ambassador has just handed to me the note published in the morning papers, which I have here."

There is no doubt the President will condemn the sinking of the Lusitania in the strongest possible terms. He may depart from the usual diplomatic practice and directly address the Kaiser himself.

The crucial point in the statement of the United States will be that no warning was or could be a justification for the sinking of the ship that did not afford passengers and crew an opportunity to escape.

It can be stated on good authority that there probably will be severe denunciation of the submarine warfare and its "new principles," and a formal demand that it shall cease immediately unless carried on under strict application of international law.

In the event a satisfactory reply is not forthcoming the United States will then have to consider the advisability of breaking off all diplomatic relations by recalling Ambassador Gerard and all other American representatives to Germany and handing Ambassador Von Bernstorff and all German consuls in this country their passports.

The statement was made authoritatively that there is a strong probability that many of the neutral nations are expected to join the United States in its protest against the kind of submarine warfare being carried on by Germany.

The question of making joint representations to Germany has been under consideration by the neutrals for some time. It was stated officially that it has not yet reached the point of an exchange of formal communications, but it is known to be at the stage where final conclusions should be reached in a very short time.

The purpose of a joint representation will be to impress Germany with the views of the neutral nations as to the rights of their commerce and to insist that these rights be observed.

The neutral nations principally affected by Germany's violation of existing rules of war are the United States, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Holland.

The South American republics might also be included, and Switzerland, though she has no merchant marine, still has many cargoes in the vessels of the other neutral nations, and probably would also be sufficiently interested to join in the representation.

Senator La Follette of Wisconsin assured President Wilson today of his support in whatever action he may take regarding the Lusitania disaster.

"I am for peace," he said. "I do not believe the situation calls for strong or drastic action of any sort. I would not be in favor of severing diplomatic relations with Germany."

"Peace with honor" was the slogan which Senator Stone of Missouri, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, carried from the White House today after a conference with the President. He declared that he did not think an extra session was necessary.

"Responsibility rests in the President alone," he declared. "We must all await his decision. He cannot shift his responsibility to any one else. He must stand before the country and before the world answerable for what he does now."

The testimony of Captain Smith of the American tank steamer Gulflight, as to the torpedoing of his vessel off the Scilly Islands ten days ago by a German submarine, was received at the State Department today, Secretary of State Bryan announced.

Snapshot of President Wilson and Mayor Rudolph Blenkenburg, taken as the President was being escorted to the Philadelphia meeting last night. Many who attended the meeting declared that the President's voice and features bespoke his deep concern over the present crisis.

CHARGE CUNARD LINE MEN WITH NEGLECT

So far as known early today about 1,000 persons were still missing and all of them had been given up for dead.

Hope for the recovery of all the bodies of those killed was abandoned today.

The strong tides which flow swiftly westward into the Atlantic off the south coast of Ireland have already borne many corpses out to sea and out of reach. The latest recoveries are reported by a trawler which picked up seven bodies off Fastnet, among them the corpse of Albert Thompson of Toronto.

Fastnet is a rocky island off Cape Clear at the extreme southwestern point of Ireland and is approximately fifty miles from the point where the Lusitania went down.

Of the accusations directed against Admiralty and Cunard officials one of the hottest came from Webb Ware, the London solicitor of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who declared that, as a result of his investigation, he was certain there had been "rank negligence not only at the moment of the catastrophe but days and weeks before."

A protest against the policy pursued by the British Admiralty, made in the form of depositions, has been drawn up.

Among the signers is Fred J. Gauntlett of New York, who was a first cabin passenger on the destroyed liner. It was Mr. Gauntlett who persuaded the Cunard line to charter a powerful ocean-going tug, which left for the scene of the disaster last night. A number of steam trawlers are also cruising off the coast.

Mr. Ware has applied to the Admiralty for permission to charter a tug and go out to search for bodies, especially that of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, which is still missing, along with the corpses of other prominent Americans, including Elbert Hubbard, Charles Klein, Lindon Bates, Jr., and Justus M. Forman.

If the Admiralty grants permission a tug will be chartered in the name of the United States.

Mr. Ware spoke bitterly of the conclusions he had formed, saying, "I am compelled to conclude that there has been rank negligence, not only at the time of the catastrophe, but for weeks before. Faulty equipment and lack of discipline were responsible for a great deal of the heavy loss of life."

Mr. Gauntlett spoke in a similar strain, saying: "I heartily accuse the Admiralty of improper inactivity in failing to send boats to look for our survivors."

WEATHER PERFECT.

The passengers unite in maintaining that weather conditions were perfect last Friday afternoon and that there was no fog to cause a reduction of liner's speed as she neared Old Head of Kinsale, off which she was attacked.

Cunard officials warned Captain W. T. Turner not to do any talking as he will be the chief witness at the government board of trade investigation.

Already three investigations are under way, one being conducted by the Cunard line, another by representatives of the American State Department and a third by Mr. Ware, who is busy securing statements from survivors. A strong east wind was blowing throughout the night causing rough water and it was feared that the Cunard tug would not have any success in locating corpses.

$6,000,000 IN LUSITANIA ACCIDENT RISKS

NEW YORK, May 11.—Just before the Lusitania sailed agents of several large life insurance companies solicited business from several wealthy passengers and today could estimate that policies aggregating $6,000,000 were taken out as the result.

A few days before the sailing, it is learned, Alfred G. Vanderbilt took out an accident policy for $100,000.

LUSITANIA SINKING HAS LITTLE EFFECT ON SHIP SCHEDULES

NEW YORK, May 11.—Indications here today were that the destruction of the Lusitania by a German submarine would have little effect upon shipping schedules. It is estimated that one hundred steamships are either in or headed for the war zone waters around the British Isles, although a number of them had already sailed before the Lusitania was torpedoed.

During the next two weeks, unless there are many cancellations of reservations, five thousand Americans will be on steamers exposed to attacks by German submarines.

The Tuscania, the best ship of the Anchor line, has successfully crossed the war zone waters by this time, she left Liverpool on Sunday with thirty saloon, one hundred and thirty second and seventy-five third class passengers.

The American liner Philadelphia is on the high seas bound east and should reach the Irish Sea Saturday. She has 910 passengers on board.

The Anchor liner Transylvania, which left here on the afternoon of the Lusitania disaster with 379 passengers, will reach the "zone" on Sunday.

The Espagne of the French Line, with 250 passengers, is bound for Bordeaux. Only two of the forty persons to take passage on the White Star liner Cymric, which will start for England on Friday, have cancelled their tickets.

Accuse Germans of Giving Out Lies

LONDON, May 11.—The British government today accused Germany of giving out false news. The basis of the accusation was a wireless dispatch sent from Berlin under date of May 9 which said that British warships had been towed into Tyne and other ports badly damaged.

The message had been intercepted and held by the censor, but was made public today by the government press bureau with the comment: "These statements are entirely a fabrication."

PRAYER ON CRISIS URGED BY BISHOP

Bishop Lawrence offered special prayers to guide President Wilson in the present critical time, before a large representative body of women of the Episcopal Church in St. Paul's Cathedral today.

He also prayed for peace to which the congregation gave a hearty response with "Amen."

In pointing to the lessons of the war, he felt that total abstinence as well as temperance could no longer be put in the condition of being ideal, but they represented the real common sense attitude of every one who had the humanitarian spirit at heart. The Bishop said:

This awful war has in some degree checked the humanitarian spirit.

There has been a vast expenditure of wealth and when the war is over the physical part of civilization must be first attended to before the spiritual side will get its due share of attention.

It behooves all, therefore, to be more generous now in planning for the building up of a stronger philanthropic spirit, that nations are to be drawn closer together, that this late cruel murder of the innocents is not expressive of what is best in the human heart, that we are to teach that all nations are of one blood, that the distinctions for race prejudice are to be broken up and that the world opinion is to be that all nations are to grow closer together and have a common work for the best in humanity.

We cannot live as a nation absorbed in ourselves, but we must have the larger interests of the world.

I remember the time in Boston, when a small boy, of seeing a procession of civilians and in the procession were a number of people carrying banners designating them as temperance people or total abstainers.

Then we would say "these persons are idealists," but we have lived to see that these persons are today no longer idealists, but they have what has come to be called common sense.

He advocated the raising of more money for missions, as work among the heathen was no longer to be regarded as ideal. This, with other matters had come to be the real common sense ambition of the true reformers in the world.

BRITISH PRESS IS CONVINCED WILSON IS FIRM FOR PEACE

By International News Service.

LONDON, May 11.—English press comment on President Wilson's Philadelphia speech is very brief in the evening papers. Most of them are apparently of the opinion that the United States will not alter its attitude of peace.

The Westminster Gazette, which usually speaks for the British Cabinet, says:

"We know the difficulties and perplexities of the American government. We can see strong reasons which impel them to withdraw from our affairs and limit their activities to the American continent, but this battle is first of all ours. We will fight through to the end with our own right hand while gratefully accepting encouragement and moral support from the millions of good men on the other side of the Atlantic."

The Evening Standard says in part: "President Wilson is a high-minded man, but by what peaceful means will America convince Germany of the injustice to mankind in the attack on the Lusitania when the Germans seem to have forgotten the very meaning of injustice to mankind?"

We advertise these three brands of Coffee (all of excellent quality), and sell more of the "Coronation" than of the other two sorts combined. This interests us, because, mind you, customers very infrequently test the three brands, but simply order the highest priced one. It appears that the inherent desire to have "the best," even when business conditions are most trying, is stronger than the call to economize. We know the 23c and 28c Coffees are excellent, but how is the consumer to know, unless he tries them? We suspect he may have been tempted at some time to buy a low priced Coffee and discovered that the price was really enough. But whatever actuates the public, the result is satisfactory—for this is how it works out. The Coronation brand at 33c per pound more than pleases, and as the average purchaser has been paying from 2c to 5c per pound more, he continues to order "Coronation." Our parcel post offer furnishes an opportunity for every Coffee drinker in New England to check up his "Coffee taste."

How Lusitania Heroes Fought to Save Babies

One Passenger Saves Two by Leaping Overboard Just Before Vessel Sank.

By A. F. BEACH.

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

HOLYHEAD, May 11.—The happiest survivor of the Lusitania I have seen is Miss Millie Docherty, two months old, of Westbury, L. I., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Docherty. Miss Millie and her mother were picked up in one of the life boats. Mr. Docherty is in Westbury. His wife and child were bound to England for a visit.

This is the experience of Millie and her mother in the latter's words: "I took the baby down to lunch with me Friday. Why, I don't know, as I had not taken her into the dining saloon before. That day, though, I instinctively took her with me. We were eating when the terrible explosion came. With others I rushed to the deck. There were hundreds there, but little panic. Only a few were trying to get away in the life boats, because nobody seemed to think the great vessel would sink.

"But soon the Lusitania listed so far that it was difficult to stand on the slanting deck and I scrambled to a safer position between the two forward funnels. By this time scores were at the boats and a few jumping into the sea.

SAVED BY UNKNOWN MAN.

"I did not know what to do and could only just keep my balance with one hand and hold Millie with the other. I stood there afraid to try to cross the deck until the last life boat was being prepared to lower. Then a man I don't know who he was, spied me and helped me across into the boat which had been freed, but by the time our boat was on the surface of the sea only the great funnels of the Lusitania appeared above the water.

"Suddenly two of these towering stacks collapsed and fell, one forward, one aft, on either side of us. One we thought was going to fall directly into our boat, but it just missed us. It came so close though that the sharp gust of air took off Millie's loosely tied bonnet and covered her hair with soot.

"Two hours later we were picked up."

LOSES WIFE AND BABIES.

No more pathetic loss is recorded than that of T. J. Webster, a Toronto contractor, who traveled second class with his wife, six-year-old son and year old twin sons. They reached the deck with the others who were dining when the torpedo struck.

When Webster saw what was happening he took his son by the hand and darted away to bring lifebelts. When he returned his wife and babies were not to be seen nor have they since been seen.

Assistant Purser W. Harkless busied himself helping others until the Lusitania was about to settle beneath the water. Then, seeing a life boat striking the water, one that was not crowded, he made a rush for it. The only person he encountered was little Barbara Anderson standing alone and clinging to the rail. Gathering her in his arms he leaped over the rail and into the boat, and this without injuring the child.

TORONTO MAN A HERO.

Ernest Cowper, a Toronto newspaperman, in almost the same manner saved Helen Smith, whose mother had been swept away from her.

Francis J. Luker, a British subject who worked six years in the United States as a postal clerk and was coming home to enlist, saved two babies he found. The little passengers snuggled in the shelter of a deck house. The Lusitania was nearing her last plunge and a life boat was swaying to the water below.

"BOSUN JOE" A HERO.

Grabbing the babies he ran to the rail and took a flying leap into the craft and these babies did not leave his arms till they were set safely on shore an hour later.

There are people who to the end of their lives will keep in their minds the picture and revere the memory of "Bosun" Joe Davis.

Of all the Lusitania's crew "Bosun" Joe was the man who realized the instant the ship was struck what was likely to happen and acted with the object of saving all the lives possible. And "Bosun Joe" knew the life boats, knew what knot to untie and what kick outward released the craft.

In fifteen minutes "Bosun" Joe sent five of the boats away. Puffing a stub pipe he went about the work as if he had been practicing with the passengers. Many passengers who were sufficiently calmed by his behavior to watch his efforts owe their lives to him. When the life boats were ready "Bosun" Joe began chucking the now willing passengers into it—ladies first and a few men to each boat to help them. The craft dropped to the water with amazing rapidity. "Good luck to you and take care of the ladies," was Joe's farewell as he went on to the next boat.

For "Bosun" Joe there was a providential rescue. He went down as did his captain, but was picked up, probably by one of the boats he cut away.

The following incident will show something of the temper of those in the life boats who were not too dazed to think of reasons or causes. One boat had drifted two hours when two middle-aged and unnamed American men who had been discussing the catastrophe entered into a solemn pledge. This pledge on which they gripped hands was that unless the Washington administration obtained as nearly a complete reparation from the perpetrators of the deed as possible they would renounce their citizenship together and take out papers in a country where they would have an opportunity of settling a portion of the score themselves.

GERMANS IN CHICAGO SCORE TRADE BOYCOTT

CHICAGO, May 11.—The Chicagoer Presse, the leading German paper in Chicago, the editor of which is Horace Brand, editorially complains that Americans in Chicago for various reasons were boycotting Chicago German-Americans and as a consequence their business languishes.

The Chichagoer Presse suggests that inasmuch as in many sections of the city German dealers have been blacklisted, it would be in order for German-Americans only to patronize German-American merchants and read only German papers. The editorial in part is as follows:

"America is neutral. The government, at least, says it is, and terms everyone a lout who doubts this and dares undertake to prove the contrary.

"Here in Chicago grocers and butchers especially are affected by this continually increasing "neutral" feeding, for neutral Americans no longer patronize their German-American fellow-citizens. Everybody has privilege of getting his necessary supplies from whoever he chooses to purchase them from. But if we have no right to harm others because of their creed or race, neutral Americans certainly are not privileged to blacklist their fellow-citizens on account of their descent.

"This equals a sort of conspiracy which would be severely punished by law if America was less neutral. It is nevertheless a fact that in many districts in Chicago, German dealers have been blacklisted. But what if the Germans in England resort to the same retaliatory measures adopted by Germany against England?

"What if the Germans in England, finding their economic existence endangered, should follow the example set and declare that they will buy from Germans only, will employ German workmen only, read only German papers and patronize such firms only which advertise in German papers."

TEST THE RAPID HEALING WORK OF POSLAM

It is wonderful to see how greatly a small application of Poslam, and few applications, will benefit any diseased, eruptional skin. Often after brief treatment the improvement is startling.

Poslam quickly controls and eradicates Eczema, Acne and stubborn, itching skin troubles. Itching stops, Pimples, Rash, Dandruff, Scaly Scalp, Chafing, Feet, Rashes, Inflamed Complexions all soon benefited at once by its soothing, healing influence.

CAPTAIN TURNER TELLS HOW THE LUSITANIA WENT DOWN

NO WARNING PRECEDED TORPEDOING, HE SAYS

KINSALE, Ireland, May 11.—Captain Turner of the ill-fated Lusitania, telling the complete story of the last moments of his ship for the first time to the coroner and his jury, cleared up many things which have been in doubt since the tragedy.

He confirmed the statement of the First Lord of the Admiralty in Parliament that the Lusitania was not convoyed. No warship flying the British flag or the flag of any nation was sighted. A double lookout was kept for submarines, but none was seen until a moment before the crash came.

Captain Turner is uncertain as to whether or not two torpedoes were fired into the Lusitania. After the first shock, he told the coroner, there was a second one, but he admitted it might have been caused by an internal explosion.

All the bulkheads were closed at the time of the disaster. That should have kept the ship afloat for hours, but Captain Turner believes that the explosion tore through them. Its great force can be realized when it is known that the bulkhead doors in descending could sever a three-foot log as easily as one could break a match in one's fingers.

The Lusitania was going at a 15-knot clip when struck and Captain Turner was unable to stop her. She was still running forward when she sank. That was one reason why so few of the boats could be lowered, although all had been gotten ready when the danger zone was reached. It was exactly eighteen minutes from the time that the torpedo struck the Lusitania until she sank.

The coroner asked Captain Turner whether he had received a message concerning the sinking of a ship of Kinsale by a submarine. He replied that he had not.

"Did you receive any special instructions as to the voyage?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are you at liberty to tell us what they were?"

"No, sir."

"Did you carry them out?"

"Yes, to the best of my ability."

"Tell us in your own words what happened after passing Fastnet."

SAW WAKE OF TORPEDO.

"The weather was clear," Captain Turner answered. "We were going at a speed of 18 knots. I was on the port side and heard Second Officer Sefford call out: 'Here's a torpedo.' I ran to the port side and saw clearly the wake of a torpedo. Smoke and steam came up between the last two funnels.

"There was a slight shock. Immediately after the first explosion there was another report, but that may possibly have been internal.

"I at once gave the order to lower the boats down to the rails and I directed that women and children should get into them.

"I also had all the bulkheads closed. Between the time of passing Fastnet, at about 11 o'clock and of the torpedoing, I saw no sight whatever of any submarines. There was some haze along the Irish coast and when we were near Fastnet I slowed down to fifteen knots. I was in wireless communication with shore all the way across."

Captain Turner was asked whether he had received any messages in regard to the presence of submarines off the Irish coast. He replied in the affirmative. Questioned regarding the nature of the message he replied:

"I respectfully refer you to the Admiralty for an answer."

"You were aware threats had been made that the ship would be torpedoed?"

"We were."

"Was she armed?"

"No, sir."

"What precautions did you take?"

"We had all the boats swung when we came within the danger zone, between the passing of Fastnet and the time of the accident.

COULD NOT STOP SHIP.

"I also gave order to stop the ship, but we could not stop. We found that the engines were out of commission. It was not safe to lower the boats until the speed was off the vessel. As a matter of fact there was a perceptible headway on her up to the time she went down.

"When she was struck she listed to starboard. I stood on the bridge when she sank, and the Lusitania went down under me. She floated about eighteen minutes after the torpedo struck her. My watch stopped at 2:30. I was picked up from among the wreckage and afterwards was brought aboard a trawler.

"No warship was convoying us. I saw no warship, and none was reported to me as having been seen. At the time I was picked up I noticed bodies floating on the surface but saw no living persons.

"Eighteen knots was not the normal speed of the Lusitania, was it?

"At ordinary times," answered Captain Turner, "she could make twenty-five knots, but in war times her speed was reduced to twenty-one knots. My reason for going eighteen knots was that I wanted to arrive at Liverpool far without stopping."

"Was there a lookout kept for submarines, having regard to previous warnings?"

"Yes. We had double lookouts."

"Were you going a zigzag course at the moment the torpedoing took place?"

"It was bright weather and land was clearly visible."

"Was it possible for a submarine to approach without being seen?"

"Oh, yes."

"Something has been said regarding the impossibility of launching the boats on the port side."

"Yes," said Captain Turner. "Owing to the listing of the ship."

"How many boats were launched safely?"

"I cannot say."

"Were any launched safely?"

"Yes, one or two on the port side."

"Were your orders promptly carried out?"

NO PANIC ON THE SHIP.

"Yes."

"Was there any panic on board?"

"No, there was no panic at all. It was almost calm."

"How many persons were on board?"

"There were one thousand, five hundred passengers and about six hundred crew."

"In the face of the warning at New York that the Lusitania would be torpedoed, did you make any application to the Admiralty for an escort?"

"No. I left that to them. That's their business, not mine. I had simply to carry out my orders to go and I would do it again."

Captain Turner uttered the last words of this reply with great emphasis.

By the Crown: "I am very glad to hear you say so, captain."

"Q.—Did you get a wireless to steer your vessel in a northerly direction? A.—No.

Q.—Was the course of the vessel altered after the torpedoes struck her? A.—I headed straight for land, but it was useless. Previous to this the watertight bulkheads were closed. I suppose the explosion forced them open. I don't know the exact extent to which the Lusitania was damaged.

Q.—There must have been serious damage done to the watertight bulkheads? A.—There certainly was, without doubt.

Q.—Were the passengers supplied with liftbelts? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were any special orders given that morning that lifebelts be put on? A.—No.

Q.—Was any warning given you before you were torpedoed? A.—None whatever. It was suddenly done and finished.

Q.—If there had been a patrol boat about, might it have been of assistance? A.—It might, but it is one of those things one never knows.

With regard to the threats against his ship, Captain Turner said he saw nothing except what appeared in the New York papers the day before the ship sailed. He had never heard the passengers talking about the threats, he said.

KAISER IS ACCUSED.

After physicians had testified that the victims had met death through prolonged immersion and exhaustion, the coroner summed up the case. The jury's verdict follows:

"We find that the deceased met death from prolonged immersion and exhaustion in the open eight miles south southwest of Old Head of Kinsale Friday, May 7, 1915, owing to the sinking of the Lusitania by torpedoes fired by a German submarine.

"We find that this appalling crime was committed contrary to international law and the conventions of all civilized nations.

"We also charge the officers of said submarine and the Emperor and government of Germany, under whose orders they acted, with the crime of wholesale murder before the tribunal of the civilized world.

"We desire to express sincere condolences and sympathy with the relatives of the deceased, the Cunard company and the United States, many of whose citizens perished in this murderous attack on an unarmed liner."

PRESIDENT HAS A FINE EXPERIENCE

Claims That He Has Regained His Health by Use of Plant Juice.

Stomach trouble is the direct cause of more derangements of the nervous system and general bodily functions than any other ailment. No other remedy has been accorded the instant success that has been obtained by Plant Juice, a vegetable combination of nature's remedies for the blood, stomach, liver and kidneys, which is being attributed daily at the introduction of this remedy in Boston.

The following is a statement of Mr. John R. Thomas, who resides at No. 921 Pace Street, McKees Rocks, Pa. Mr. Thomas for the past nine years was secretary and now is the president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen's Lodge, No. 1241, and is also chairman of the Grievance Committee of the P. C. & S. Railroad. Mr. Thomas is one of the well known and popular railroad men in the United States. He says:

"For the past five years I have suffered from stomach trouble. My liver was sluggish, and I always had pains in the region of my stomach and it would 'repeat.' I was of a constipated habit, and at times was so sick that I was unable to do my work and suffered untold agony from my stomach. I had heard of Plant Juice and tried one bottle of it. I improved from the very first, and after having taken it for a short time and my stomach does not pain me any more. I can eat anything I want and my stomach digests it perfectly, my kidneys are working fine, and I have gone from my liver complication does not trouble me at all. I have taken Plant Juice, and gladly recommend it to all persons suffering from stomach, liver or kidney trouble, as it has done wonders for me in the following symptoms: Headache, dizziness, poor appetite, constipation, insomnia, sensation of sinking of food, gas on the stomach, palpitation of the heart, etc. The Plant Juice man is at Liggett's drug store, corner Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy. Had Lung Trouble and Expected to Die

The many testimonials brought about by Eckman's Alterative are attracting wide attention. Read about this case:

53 B St., Keyser, W. Va.

"Gentlemen:—I was taken sick in November, 1908. I grew steadily worse. Had two consultations. The verdict was the fever had affected my lungs and that my case was hopeless; only gave me two months to live. My physician had tried most all kinds of treatment and none did me any good, so he asked my husband if he objected to him trying a proprietary medicine. I began your Alterative. I was confined from November 20, 1908, until February 25, 1909, and was thought by several times. Today I am healthier and stronger than ever." (Abbreviated.)

U. S. SHOULD HAVE STRONG NAVY, SAYS SAMUEL J. ELDER

By SAMUEL J. ELDER.

Authority on international law, president of the Massachusetts Peace Society, and former member of the Alaskan Boundary Commission:

No private person should attempt to dictate the course of the United States in the present crisis. According to the constitution this question should be left to the President, and it must be left with him.

In regard to the question of our attitude toward Germany, Germany has defied the world. That is all the answer I can make at this time. Because I am president of the peace society you don't want to think I favor a weak navy. We ought to have both an army and navy abundantly able to defend the country.

We should have a sufficient number of battleships, cruisers and auxiliary craft of all kinds, and, above all, plenty of submarines.

Kenan Now Named Among Survivors

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Consul Frost at Queenstown today cabled to the State Department the name of Mr. Kenan as among the survivors of the Lusitania disaster. He announced that the name of Mrs. May Brown should be stricken from the list of identified dead.

Clemenceau Scores Wilson's Attitude

PARIS, May 11.—In an article entitled "Europe's Revolution," George Clemenceau, editor of L'Homme Enchaine, says: "Some neutrals still hesitate. History will wonder that the most notable among them have not dared to protest against the violation of Belgium's neutrality, apropos of which President Wilson, following the Pope's example, gravely consults his law book authorities to know if right has not been outraged."

HOW FROHMAN AND VANDERBILT WENT TO DEATH

QUEENSTOWN, May 11. — With locked arms, Charles Frohman, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Miss Rita Jolivet and G. L. P. Vernon, Miss Jolivet's brother-in-law, stood together as the Lusitania took her last plunge.

As the water came racing over the deck toward the group and the liner's bow plunged deeper and deeper beneath it, Mr. Frohman said to his companions:

"Why should one fear death? It is the most beautiful event in life!"

Miss Jolivet, an actress, whose last New York appearance was in "What It Means to a Woman," but who later took part in a film play, "The Unafraid," was the one member of the quartet to be rescued. The circumstances of his death and the last words of the manager were told by her to William McMillan Adams of New York.

"Miss Jolivet," said Mr. Adams, "had not known Mr. Vanderbilt until she and her brother-in-law found themselves beside him and Mr. Frohman on the deck. Her experience has given her a great nervous shock, but those last words, so calmly spoken, became indelible in her mind, as did the memory of the locked arms that held the four together.

"Just before they faced the end Mr. Vanderbilt had helped fasten a life-belt on Mr. Frohman. Mr. Frohman must have been injured, because he had to be helped toward the railing as the Lusitania listed more and more. Then came the final plunge and all were swept overboard."

When Mr. Frohman's body was identified his face was bloodstained, and it would seem that he had been quite seriously injured. Most of the survivors have cuts and bruises received from the debris that was flung upward by the torpedoes.

Cheap brown coffins contain the bodies of Mr. Frohman, Dr. F. S. Pearson of New York, D. Walker, Dr. Pearson's secretary, Mrs. Henry B. Meeboim of New York, Isaac F. Trumbull of Bridgeport, Ct.; Charles H. Stevens of Atlantic City, C. T. Broderick of Harvard, Herbert Ellis o' New York, and Mrs. John B. Spillman of Detroit. These will probably be the first to be prepared for shipment back to the United States.

Ship Carries Rifles to Explode Mines

Captain J. N. G. Anderberg of the Swedish steamship Gralland, in today from Copenhagen and Gotenburg, explained the presence of a half dozen Mauser rifles on his ship by saying that it is the practice of merchant ships in the North Sea to carry rifles to explode drifting mines.

Monster Sale of

Plimpton-Hervey Company's Furniture Stock This Week

THE almost overwhelming response to the Sunday newspaper announcements concering our big sale severely taxed our sales force yesterday and doubtless many of our customers were inconvenienced by what seemed an unnecessary delay in our service. We regret that such may have been the case, but even our largely augumented selling force was unable to adequately meet every pressing situation. We had planned for big crowds—and crowds came. We regret that any of our customers may have suffered inconvenience, but we have prepared ourselves against further delays by employing more salesmen for the remainder of the sale.

WE take this opportunity to thank our friends and patrons for the success that is already assured for this sale of the Plimpton-Hervey Stock. The enormous volume of business that flowed into our store yesterday is not only a tribute to public confidence in us, but a tribute to the buying judgment of our customers. We know that there never have been such bargains.

WOMAN TELLS GRAPHIC STORY OF THE DISASTER

By HAYDEN TALBOT.

QUEENSTOWN, May 11. — While the drays in an endless procession rumbled over the cobblestones with the pine coffins, covered in some instances with the Union Jack and in others with the Stars and Stripes, transferring the 129 bodies of Lusitania victims to the cemetery, Mrs. Henry Adams, wife of a London merchant, told me the most graphic tale of the disaster of any I have yet heard.

She had just finished examining the unidentified dead in the coffins on the Cunard pier and had given up as hopeless her search for her husband when I approached her.

"When the shock came we were both in the writing room on the top deck. I knew the ship was doomed but my husband was just as sure she could not sink."

"WE CANNOT SINK."

"However, we went down to the stateroom, got our life belts, and ran back to the top deck, preservers in hand. The ship was listing so that it was very difficult to walk. On two occasions, while ascending the stairs, my husband was struck and knocked down. On deck he wanted to stand and listen but I kept in the lead and helped him climb the sloping deck and reach the rail on the higher side.

"Here we saw a boat ready. Some one shouted 'women first,' but I refused to get in, insisting on staying with my husband.

"He seemed dazed and almost unconscious. I put a life preserver on him and then put on my own.

"In the meantime the captain had ordered the boats not to be lowered. A boatswain standing behind me on deck said: 'We're resting on the bottom. We cannot sink.' This statement calmed most of those about us.

"My husband sat down on a collapsible boat. He seemed unable to stand. There we remained for several minutes holding on to the rail in order to keep from sliding down the inclined deck. Suddenly I saw a great wave come over the bow and instantly my husband and all of us were engulfed.

CARRIED UNDER BOAT.

"As the ship sank I found I was being carried down under a lifeboat.

"It got pitch black. Then suddenly it became lighter. The dark blue turned to light blue and then I was in the sunshine afloat, though I could not swim. Finally I caught hold of a piece of wood and held on.

"After a time a raft carrying twenty men and one woman floated by. I begged the men to help me aboard but they did not want to, and it was only when the woman upbraided them that one of the men dragged me on the raft.

"There was something wrong with the raft as it kept capsizing time and time again. Each time it was less buoyant and almost every time it overturned one or more of the poor wretches would disappear. Finally the other woman went down.

"BOATS UNDERMANNED."

"I made use of my gymnastic knowledge and as the raft turned I crawled hand over hand, always managing to stay on it. Finally only six of us were left and then the raft sank from under us and we were left alone in the water.

"Altogether it was three hours and a half before a torpedo boat came. I saw it in the distance but was so exhausted and numb with the cold by then that I lost consciousness and knew nothing more until I recovered on the torpedo boat.

"Although I am closely identified with the Cunard line and would wish to do nothing that might minimize the hideous crime of the Germans I feel it my duty to humanity to say something that may prevent a repetition of this enormous loss of life.

"Not only were the boats undermanned before being lowered, but the equipment itself was faulty. The raft I was on leaked and the collapsible boats had rusty, unworkable hinges, a matter that could have been remedied by oiling once in a fortnight.

"If the members of the crew got their deserts the stewards would be praised to heaven and the stokers would be damned to hell."

A. H. ADAMS' NAME IS NOW AMONG DEAD

Hope which had been raised for the survival of A. Henry Adams, one of the Lusitania's passengers, abated when his name appeared in the revised list today of those who perished.

Mr. Adams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams of No. 108 Hunnewell avenue, Newton. He was with his son, William McMillan Adams, returning to their home in London. First both were reported lost. Their names were also confused with those of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams of England, who had been visiting relatives in Brookline and survived.

Yesterday it was learned that William McMillan Adams, the grandson of the Newton couple, escaped. Later in the day the Cunard office was reported to have given out that the father, A. Henry Adams, also survived.

But Henry Adams, the grandfather, said today that he has not had any cable message from his son and cannot entertain hopes until he does. The lack of any message from the son and the fact that his name was in the latest list of victims makes hope for his very slender.

COAR REFUSES TO TEACH HIS GERMAN CLASS

Professor John F. Coar of the University of Rochester, N. Y., who was for a number of years an instructor at Harvard, refused to teach his German class because of the sinking of the Lusitania.

He explained he did not feel able to teach the ideals of Goethe and Schiller, so wholly incompatible with the present conditions.

Dr. Coar graduated from Boston University in 1885, admitted to the Massachusetts bar, received the degree of A. M. from Harvard University in 1887 and his Ph. D. from that institution in 1900. Three years later, when he had become instructor of the German language at Harvard, he was appointed to the head of the department of German languages and literature at Adelphi College, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dorchester Woman Lusitania Victim

Sarah Donahue of No. 41 Charles street, Dorchester, was one of those who went down with the Lusitania. She was hurrying to Ireland to see her sister who was on her death bed. Her sister died and relatives in Dorchester got a cablegram soon after the liner sailed.

PARALLELS IN THE LUSITANIA AND TITANIC

NEW York, May 11.—Some striking parallels suggest themselves in a comparison of the death rolls of the Titanic and Lusitania disasters.

John Jacob Astor was the most conspicuous American lost on the Titanic, as Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was on the Lusitania. Each inherited a great fortune, each was a dominant figure in the social life of the city, each died in gallant self-sacrifice.

Henry B. Harris was a notable figure in the theatrical world when the sinking of the Titanic ended his career. Charles Frohman, when the Lusitania went down, was perhaps the most distinguished figure in the managerial field.

Jacques Futrelle was in the full flower of his fame as a writer when he became a passenger on the Titanic. Justus Miles Forman had come to a like period when he took passage on the Lusitania.

William T. Stead was an eminent figure among English journalists when he died on the Titanic. Elbert Hubbard, who died on the Lusitania, was at least as well known among journalists.

Isador Straus had dedicated his life to philanthropy when he found his place among the victims of the Titanic. Lindon Bates, Jr., of the Lusitania's company, had given over almost complete his engineering affairs to further the work of the American commission for relief in Belgium.

Suppose YOU were allowed to choose without price limitations.

Suppose YOU had the opportunity to select 100 new waists at one time for YOURSELF. (There are more than 100 different styles in this sale)—

YOU would go here and there as we did—from one favorite market to another, taking the CREAM.

YOU would buy (or we are no judge) waists of delicate lace, filmy Georgette crepe and crepe chiffon, two or three heavy white crepe de chine blouses, many lingerie blouses in voile, organdie and batiste, semi-tailored striped and plain linens, a smart black-and-white effect in striped soft washable taffeta; cool tubsilk.

YOU would want the new Quaker collars, the new ruffles and jabots.

It is these waists that are most wanted at regular prices that we have provided underpriced for this Annual Sale, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday

THIS OFFERING IS ONE OF MANY

in which the Filene store emphasizes its ability to provide remarkable values in medium-priced garments at the very height of their seasons.

"Perfectly wonderful!"

That and similar expressions of pleased surprise were heard frequently last week during the three days of our special sale of women's and misses' dresses.

These comments were provoked by the fact that at such low prices there was such a wide range of absolutely right styles.

The important thing to remember, however, is that these fashion feasts at medium and low prices are merely episodes in an endless succession of similar events.

Filene's is well worthy your constant attention.

Every member of the family is included in our broad economic planning.

ANOTHER AIR RAID ON PARIS

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, May 11.—Several persons were killed and wounded by bombs dropped from a German aeroplane that flew over the suburbs of St. Denis early today.

The raid of the aeroplane, a machine of the taube type, was dashed to headquarters from St. Denis, which is only five miles north of the centre of Paris and garrisons of all the forts were called to duty.

Three French aviators set out to meet the German aeroplane, but upon sighting them the pilot of the taube turned north and disappeared.

The taube appeared over St. Denis at 7:15 a. m. It dropped several bombs, one falling in a group of civilians, practically all of whom were mangled by the explosion. Other bombs tore great holes in the streets. The French aerial squadron sent in pursuit was distanced by the taube and returned to Paris after pursuing it for twenty miles.

It was officially announced at the War Office this afternoon that the taube had dropped only two bombs, wounding two persons, but residents of St. Denis who arrived here at noon said that a dozen bombs had been thrown and several persons killed.

Turk Loss 45,000 on Dardanelles

ATHENS, May 11.—General D'Amade, commander of the French troops operating at the Dardanelles, notified the French legation here today that the Turks on Gallipoli Peninsula lost [illegible] 45,000 men and that the advance of allied troops continues despite fierce resistance. His message, transmitted from Tenedos follows:

"The allies on Friday and Saturday continued their advance, occupying important positions despite desperate resistance. Unimpeachable information says the Turkish losses in Gallipoli Peninsula number 45,000 men. Their wounded are being sent to Rodosto."

Further Gains Made by French

PARIS, May 11.—In the face of severe German counter attacks the French have made a further gain north of Arras, where the allies are striking against the Germans over a twenty-six-mile front, according to an official statement issued by the French War Office.

Another German air raid has been directed against Dunkirk. Fifteen bombs were dropped upon Bergues, four miles south of Dunkirk, killing seven persons. One of the outer ring of forts defending Dunkirk is at Bergues.

Werner Horn Must Stand Trial Here

Judge Morton, in the United States district court, today handed down an opinion against closing a writ of habeas corpus to issue in behalf of Werner Horn, the officer of the German army who attempted to blow up the international bridge over the St. Croix River. Horn will now have to stand trial here on the charge of carrying explosives on a common carrier (a passenger train)—and must stay in the East Cambridge jail until he is bailed or acquitted. The bail has been fixed at $10,000.

Russian Losses Now 150,000 Men

VIENNA, via Berlin and Amsterdam, May 11.—Russian losses suffered in the defeat that resulted in a general retreat of the Czar's troops in the Carpathians total 150,000, according to a statement issued by the Austrian War Office.

Late dispatches from the front today confirmed earlier reports of an overwhelming Austro-German victory.

Want 1,500 Men as Miners in South

Commissioner Henry J. Shettington of the Boston Immigration Bureau has received notice from Washington that 1,500 men are wanted in the West Virginia mines and he has instructed Inspectors Burke and Leonard, in charge of listing applicants for work, to forward to the West Virginia officers the names of men who want work of that sort. There are no labor troubles in the mines now that the officials are aware of.

GAME BOARD HEAD DENIES CHARGES

In a vigorous denial today of charges recently made by the State Board of Efficiency and Economy, by George W. Field, chairman of the Fish and Game Commission, not only disclaims any intention of wrongdoing by him or his colleagues, but says the State has actually profited by many of the items of which the efficiency board complains.

Dr. Field denies charging carfare between his home in Sharon and the depot or railroad fare between Sharon and Boston, except when on State business, outside office business and when traveling via Boston outside the State.

In the matter of charging regular tariff fare, Dr. Field says he never received by presenting a book or a mileage ticket. Dr. Field says he was guided by general practice at the time. Since objection by State auditors over a year ago the practice has been discontinued.

EXPLAINS BILLS.

With regard to hotel bills in Boston, he says they were incurred only on account of overtime work when engaged in work at unreasonable hours. He says no pay was ever asked or received for this overtime work.

He admits being out of the State without permission of the Governor, but says it was on federal business, and the item complained of relates to a trip from Lowell to Nashua, N. H., using an expense of seventy cents.

Dr. Field denies ever charging the State for lecture expenses where fees were received. Where fees were not received he says State Auditor Cutler ruled expenses might properly be charged.

With regard to the charge of using State money for unwarranted entertainment in New Orleans, Dr. Field admits the charge, but says it was justified, as once he and Mr. Cutler met with fish and game officials of other States.

TREES ARE "BUDDING."

About the charge that State trees have been set out on his estate, Dr. Fields admits their presence on his Sharon farm, but claims they are there for building purposes and that when ready they will be set out elsewhere.

The famous flock of chickens about which the efficiency board claims Dr. Field made contradictory statements was the result of a misunderstanding, it is averred, Dr. Field admits placing the chickens in a hatchery on account of unavoidable circumstances for a short time, but says he is actually out of pocket by the deal and that the State is the gainer.

On Trial for Death of Daniel H. Park

John J. O'Brien, charged with manslaughter in killing Daniel H. Park, superintendent of streets of Saugus, was today placed on trial before Judge Quinn and a jury in the Salem court. O'Brien was a laborer in the employ of the town of Saugus. It is alleged he had an argument with Park, striking him over the head with a piece of lead pipe.

Arrest in Probe of Newton Fire

As a climax to the excitement attending the $100,000 fire in a shed attached to a barn of Francis J. Murphy on River street, Newton, which caused the flooding of three cellars and the summoning of apparatus from Newton and Waltham, the police arrested Francis Roche, county, of Ottawa place, West Newton. Neighbors say the fire undoubtedly started from a haystack fire.

SEEK BAY STATE'S MILITARY POWER

Under a resolve passed by both branches of the Legislature and signed today by Governor Walsh, investigation will be made to determine the military preparedness of Massachusetts and to recruit the military strength of the State.

The investigation, to be made by a board of four militiamen and five civilians to be appointed by the Governor within two weeks, will consider the subject of military education, the question of compulsory enrollment in the militia and the advisability of establishing a militia reserve. The investigation was recommended by many prominent men, including the late Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., Randolph Coolidge, Jr., Major Henry L. Higginson and Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole. The board will investigate:

"The practicability of providing military training for boys between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one for the purpose of securing a proper military training and discipline for the youths of this commonwealth and improving their physical, moral and educational qualities and for providing for the commonwealth an adequate basis for a citizen soldiery.

"The practicability of providing military training for the youths in the public high schools.

"The advisability of requiring enrollment in the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia for a period of three years for all male citizens.

"The practicability of creating a militia reserve."

"Hunter of World" Here for Marriage

"The Hunter of the World" applied at the city registrar's office for a marriage license today, giving his name as William H. Hudlin of Maquasit Lake, N. H., and that of his prospective bride as Miss Gertrude Mason of No. 78 Worcester square, a twenty-two-year-old saleslady.

Hudlin's self-applied title astounded Assistant Registrar Brown, who learned that the Maquapit Lake man also wanted the five-day law suspended so that the marriage could take place immediately. This request was referred to the courts for decision later.

Mediation Asked By Paper Makers

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Secretary of Labor Wilson today announced that members of the paper makers' union of New England have applied to the Department of Labor to mediate the strike now threatening in their trade throughout New England. Secretary Wilson will take immediate steps to see if mediation is acceptable to the employers. In event of an affirmative reply representatives of the department will be assigned to the task without delay.

Lynn Man Gets Four Years for Killing

After being found guilty by a jury in the Salem court of manslaughter, in causing the death of David W. Young in Lynn on March 9, 1915, Dominick Fortunato was today sentenced to not less than four and not more than five years in the State Prison by Judge Quinn. Fortunato threw a picture and a piece of crockery at Young and hit him in the head.

CUT DEFENCE OF COL. ROOSEVELT

By L. V. B. RUCKER,
Special Correspondent of International News Service.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 11.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's defence against William Barnes' $50,000 libel suit today was stripped by Justice Andrews ruling down to the senatorial election of 1911 and the alleged "Printing ring" at Albany.

The court overruled the plaintiff's motion to strike out the testimony regarding the senatorial deadlock tending to show a corrupt alliance between Barnes and Charles F. Murphy, as declared by Roosevelt in his statement of July 23, 1914.

The pasting testimony tending to prove Roosevelt's allegation of an alliance between crooked business and crooked politics was under argument this afternoon.

Auto Fire Truck Plunges Into Ditch; 2 Hurt

Two firemen were seriously injured near the Kelleher estate, Quincy, today, when an auto chemical wagon crashed into a telegraph pole and pitched fifteen feet down an embankment into a ditch. The injured men are Richard Williams, driver of the chief's auto, and Edward Barry, recently assigned to drive the auto steam fire engine tractor.

Williams was breaking in Barry on the auto chemical. The machine was going down the street with Barry at the wheel. Williams noticed something was wrong, but before he could take the wheel the auto crashed into the pole snapping it off at the base and not stopping until sank in the mud in the ditch side of the road.

IDENTIFY MAN AS LONE BANDIT

Several victims of the lone bandit who for the past few months has robbed Boston liquor stores almost at will, and who, it is believed, was the man arrested last night in Providence after being shot in the back while being chased by detectives, today visited police headquarters at Pemberton square and positively identified the picture of John Meakin as that of the man who held clerks up and in some instances locked them in the cellar and ice chests.

The Boston police feel sure that they have at last found the man whose sensational career has terrorized merchants of Boston. They also feel positive that he is the man who shot down Fairolian Corcoran, who waited for him in a liquor store on Columbus avenue. Corcoran will be shown the picture.

Meakin was arrested charged on an indictment warrant with robbing Colpitts' tickets agency on Canal street.

As soon as his condition permits he will be brought to Boston and arraigned.

Held on Charge of Death by Pitchfork

William J. Lynch, twenty, of Brighton, was arraigned today in the Brighton District Court on a charge of manslaughter, in connection with the death of Charles McGrath, twenty-two, who was killed by a blow from a pitchfork yesterday. Lynch pleaded not guilty and the case was continued until May 18. Lynch is out on $2,500 bail.

According to the police, Lynch and McGrath were "fooling" in a barn in the rear of No. 4 Waverly place. William Colmey, who was present when McGrath was struck by the pitchfork, told the police the affair grew out of a friendly scuffle.

HALL COMMITTEE WILL CONTINUE

Despite the death of John A. Hall, the Southbridge bank defaulter, the special legislative committee investigating his pardon from the Charlestown State Prison will continue its investigation and report to the Legislature, according to Representative Robert M. Washburn of Worcester, the Committee chairman.

As the committee was considering principally whether Hall's physical condition was sufficient to warrant his pardon, Hall's demise is considered to have an overwhelming effect upon the investigation. The death is regarded as proving beyond any possible refutation that the pardon was justified. Hall died of cancer in California.

It is also said that if the committee attempts to present a biased political report to the Legislature, it will be attacked on the ground that it violates that constitutional provision that the Legislature has no right to review the acts of the executive department.

HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

A SIMPLE, SAFE AND RELIABLE WAY.

People who are overburdened with superfluous fat, know only too well the discomfort and ridicule that over-stout people have to bear.

If you are carrying around five or ten pounds of unhealthy fat you are unnecessarily weakening your vital organs and are carrying a burden which destroys the beauty of your figure.

There is no need of anyone suffering from superfluous fat. If you want to reduce your weight in a simple, safe and reliable way, without starvation diet or tiresome exercise, spend as much time as you can in the open air, breathe deeply and get from any good druggist a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week so as to know just how fast you are losing weight and desist from the treatment or even skip a single dose until you are down to normal.

Oil of korein, a tasteless, harmless, is pleasant to take, helps digestion and is designed to consume the excessive fatty tissue by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight, footsteps become lighter, your body seems easier and a lighter and more buoyant feeling takes possession of your whole being.

Every person who suffers from superfluous fat should give this treatment a trial. There is nothing better.

FRANK P. CORMIER, of Campello, a candidate, who is striving earnestly to secure one of the Boston AMERICAN'S De Luxe tours to the Pacific Coast and Expositions.

Another big opportunity opens up today for all candidates in the AMERICAN'S Great California Tours Contest.

Everyone familiar with the contest plan will realize, by this time, the tremendous importance of getting the largest possible number of people started to make their vote collections with the first coupon in each series.

The winners in this remarkable competition, will, undoubtedly, be chosen as a result of the double vote value given for consecutive sets of coupons. The candidates are all familiar with this double vote value plan and how it is given and the only important reminder necessary is the absolute necessity of a flying start on the beginning of each new series.

FALZONE DIES IN THE CHAIR

The body of Flavia Falzone, twenty-three, who went to the electric chair at the Charlestown State Prison this morning, was claimed and paid for locally for his part in the murder of Herris A. Albertson, a Lawrence jeweler, at Wakefield on December 9, was taken in charge by an undertaker early today.

The current was applied at 12:04:29 a. m. and Falzone was declared dead at 12:12:34.

The condemned man's last statement, which was given to the reporters by the Rev. Michael J. Murphy, the Catholic chaplain at the prison, read:

"I, Biagio Falzone, about to die, wish to say from the bottom of my heart, that I forgive all those who have taken part in my case, especially those who testified against me, and I ask my relatives and friends not to molest them or any one who was associated with me. I ask God's forgiveness and I ask my friends to pray for me."

Falzone received a final visit from his married sister and her husband. Through her he sent his last verbal message to his mother and sisters in Italy, and also gave her several letters to post them. As she spoke with him in his cell in the death house, Fathers Murphy and Vittorio Gregori of the Sacred Heart Church, North End, and Warden Nathan D. Allen were nearby. The visit lasted about half an hour, and a tearful farewell followed.

Fathers Murphy and Gregori and the Rev. William Bradley Whitney, the Protestant chaplain, found Falzone depressed and did their best to cheer him. They urged him to sing and joined with him in the choruses. They did not leave him until he was taken to the death chamber.

The legal witnesses of the electrocution were Dr. Frank D. Williams of Brookline, surgeon-general of the militia; Medical Examiner Magrath, and Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, the prison physician. Others in the death chamber were Chief James J. Pollard of the Wakefield police, Sheriff John R. Fairbairn of Middlesex county, Dr. Daniel J. Hurley, Peter G. Greene, the Rev. Fathers Murphy and Gregori and the Rev. Mr. Whitney.

State Inquiry on Private Beaches

The wealthy society folk who have established Summer mansions at Magnolia, Manchester, Beverly and other fashionable Essex County beaches will be subjected to a State investigation to determine whether they have usurped the public rights. The order requiring the investigation was signed today by Governor Walsh.

Former Mayor Harry C. Foster of Gloucester, who presented the order for the investigation, charged that the society leaders have seized the public beaches and have excluded the poor people.

"Solicitor" Guilty of Theft Attempt

Oliver H. Jones, forty-six years old, who claims to live at No. 6 Oak place, Boston, and who claimed to have been a solicitor for the Morgan Memorial, was found guilty in the Somerville Police Court today of the larceny of $1 from Mrs. Frank N. Crossman, No. 15 Moore street, Somerville. Mrs. Crossman says Jones called on her and while she was getting some old clothes for the poor, from another room, Jones attempted to take the money from a handbag.

Flynn to Confer K. C. Third Degrees

District Deputy Frank Flynn tonight will confer the third degree on sixty second-degree members of the Knights of Columbus in International Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury. The exercises will be held under the auspices of Rose Croix Council. A large contingent of delegates in attendance at the annual convention of the State Council today will be present as guests of the State officers.

Walsh Signs New Compensation Bill

Governor Walsh today signed another bill that further enlarged the scope of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The new bill provides that when a minor is injured or killed during the course of his employment in the Industrial Accident Board, and fixes the compensation, shall take into consideration the possible increase in salary that he would have received during the period of his temporary or permanent incapacity. In the event of death, compensation may be based on the salary that the employee would have received had he attained the age of twenty-one years. The law with which the Governor signed the bill was presented to Representative John L. Sullivan of South Boston, who introduced the bill in the Legislature.

Government of the Argentine Nation

Five Year 6% Treasury Gold Bonds

Dated May 15, 1915 — Due May 15, 1920
Coupon bonds in denomination of $1,000 — Interest payable November 15 and May 15
Principal and interest payable in New York at the National City Bank of New York in U. S. gold dollars of the present standard of weight and fineness

EXEMPT FROM ALL PRESENT OR FUTURE ARGENTINE TAXES

These Treasury Bonds are issued under authority of Law Number 9468, dated January 2, 1914, and Law Number 9648, dated February 9, 1915, which authorize the Executive Power to issue a total amount of $0,000,000 Argentine gold pesos (equivalent to $77,760,000 United States gold or £16,000,000 sterling) for the purpose of furnishing means for the extension of the Sanitary Works and water supply of the Federal Capital. The immediate issue consists of the $25,000,000 now offered in the United States of America and £5,000,000 offered in the United Kingdom of Great Britain. Both the sterling and dollar bonds are of substantially similar tenor and content.

After May 15, 1917, sterling and dollar bonds will be interchangeable between London and New York at the fixed rate of $4.86 per pound sterling, the expense of any new stamps which may be required to be borne by the holder.

These Five Year 6% Treasury Gold Bonds are the direct general obligation of the Argentine Government, whose faith and credit are pledged for the prompt payment of the principal and semi-annual interest as they fall due.

The text of each bond is to embody the following three clauses:

"For the purpose of furnishing means for the eventual replacement of the present short term Treasury Bonds by the issue of long term bonds, the Executive Power of the Nation shall procure such amendment of Laws Numbers 8889 and 9468 as will permit the Government to assume responsibility of and endorse with its guaranty the bonds or obligations which the Board of Sanitary Works is authorized to issue in accordance with those laws. When the amendment has been obtained and the issue made, the proceeds thereof will be applied to the redemption of the present issue.

"Until the entire loan, of which this bond forms a part, is cancelled, the Government of the Argentine Nation will not agree to more favorable conditions as regards security for any loan whatsoever without securing like manner the principal and instalments of interest of each and every bond of this loan. Loans are excepted which may be raised for industrial purposes, such as railroads or petroleum, and for which the industries themselves may be encumbered.

"When the amendment of Laws Numbers 8889 and 9468 shall have been accomplished and the attendant issue of bonds or obligations shall have been made, the Executive Power will retain in his control, as security for this loan until its complete cancellation, an amount in money or of such bonds or obligations equal to the amount of the present loan."

From the proceeds of the present loan there will be retained by the Bankers, funds sufficient to pay off $5,000,000 Series "A" 6% Gold Notes maturing December 15, 1915; £5,000,000 of short term notes maturing in London, September 2; and £3,000,000 maturing December 15, 1915. The balance will constitute free money available for further construction expenditures upon the Sanitary Works of Buenos Aires.

Additional bonds are reserved under the authorization of the above laws to refund the $5,500,000 Series "B" and $5,000,000 Series "C" Notes maturing December 15, 1916, and December 15, 1917, respectively.

A circular giving additional data may be had upon request

We offer these Bonds, subject to prior sale and change in price, at

99 and interest

Interim certificates will be issued on or about May 15, pending delivery of definite bonds.

"THE GODDESS" By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company

THIS dream went away, and Tommy saw the little Amesbury girl once more in the garden playing with the jewels. Suddenly she rose and threw all the jewels impatiently aside, and then she ran into the house and looked under her pillow and, low and behold! there she found the very doll that Tommy had given her, and then she looked so happy and contented that Tommy, even in his sleep, knew that when he waked he wouldn't be as sad about her as he had been.

She was in the schoolroom. The map which the teacher had drawn in red chalk had grown so big that you could no longer see the other maps at all, and it was blood red and smoking. It looked less and less like a map, and more and more like a face. It had horns and pointed ears, but these melted off, and it began to develop two enormous eyes with coal-black rims.

Before the thing really looked like anybody that he had ever seen Tommy knew that in the very next crumb of time it was going to look exactly like Professor Stillitar.

He knew that he must knock its glasses off or perish. He struck at them with all his might, and his hand passed through them, as if they had been made of smoke.

Then he waked up, and with as loud a scream as any healthy-minded and badly frightened small boy ever succeeded in screaming.

Mr. Barclay couldn't help being fond of Tommy, but in some ways Tommy proved an awful disappointment to him.

Adopted into and brought up to be an aristocrat of wealth, he had no interest in money except to spend it. Not that he was especially wasteful or especially extravagant, but only that he took no interest in how the money had been gathered or how it could be made to work.

He was much more interested in horses and boats and dogs and shooting than in any of his patron's financial affairs. He went to boarding school and played on the football team and the hockey team and the baseball team. He took prizes in everything that he engaged in, except studies. It was the same with him at college. He spent half of his time winning trophies for his college and the other half making friends for himself. When he graduated Mr. Barclay tried to teach him banking, railroading and a few other trifles all at once.

Mr. Barclay had no patience with the idea that it is best to begin at the bottom and work up. He believed in beginning at the top. Tommy did his very best to make good. He attended long-drawn-out directors' meetings and he racked his brains to understand what they were all about. He travelled all over the country to inspect this property and that and once he almost got into touch with finance; at least he found amusement in one aspect of it. In short, he was sworn in as a special deputy in a time of coal trouble and helped to put down a strike.

Mr. Barclay did not expect too much of Tommy, and soon saw that what little he did expect he was not likely to get. But he was very fond of him and tried to make the best of him. Tommy spent all his leisure time playing polo or tennis or dashing off on hunting trips, and some fourteen or fifteen years after this story opens he became very much interested in Miss Mary Blackstone.

He hadn't forgotten the little Amesbury girl. He never would forget her, but what is the use of a little girl who lives in heaven to a young man who doesn't?

Tommy often dreamed about her still. As he grew older she grew older, and the heaven in which she lived and was educated by the most scientific and philosophical of all the saints and angels became more and more sophisticated and less and less like the palace scene in a comic opera.

But Mary Blackstone did not live in heaven, did not wear a halo, did not string a golden harp or sit around and look as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth. She lived in a low white house near Southampton, L. I.

It had gardens full of gigantic boxwood, and it had so many fluted columns to hold up its veranda roofs that Tommy, with his distaste for figures, was never able to count them. Some people said the house had a hundred rooms in it; other people said that there were two hundred. These, however, did not affect Tommy.

He was on the most charming and intimate terms with her father, and there was one southwest room in which he spent many and many a week-end, and which was always known to the Blackstone family as Tommy's room.

Mary Blackstone rode horses, played tennis and swam in the surf as well as a strong and courageous boy. Tommy never knew whether she was more attractive in athletic clothes or when, as she expressed it, she was dressed to look like a real lady. Every phase of her appearance charmed him. Unfortunately, these same phases and everything else about her charmed a good many other men.

If she liked Tommy better than anybody else she was in no hurry to say so. She didn't want to cut herself off from all the other young men, whom she liked almost as well, Carlton Fitch, for instance.

Carlton Fitch was Mr. Barclay's nephew, and in some ways was a great favorite of his uncle. He took so much interest in his uncle's banks, railroads, mines, etc., that you might have thought that he expected to own them some day.

He was not only a nominal director of a great many corporations, but a very real director in the affairs of half a dozen of the more important. He never neglected work for play. Some people admired him tremendously; others said they wouldn't trust him around the corner with a five-cent piece.

Outwardly he and Tommy were always friendly and polite to each other, even after they had become open rivals for Mary Blackstone's approval, but inwardly each had a certain contempt for the other, and, in addition to this, Carlton Fitch was jealous of Tommy, for he had expected to inherit almost the whole of Mr. Barclay's money, and since Tommy's adoption it looked as if he was going to inherit very little of it indeed. He would be rich, anyway, but he was very greedy for power.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

GET A JOB FIRST

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am twenty-three years old, and have been going with a girl of eighteen years for seven months. We love and understand each other as well as we ever can. I have no steady job but have about three hundred dollars in the bank.

Do you think we should be so-asked soon and married in about a year?
ANXIOUS.

UNLESS a man has regular employment, it is unwise for him to contemplate marriage. When a man is married, there is a regular, inevitable weekly expense—great or small as the case may be. Unless there is an equally regular salary to meet this expense, nothing but disaster can follow.

YOU ARE TOO YOUNG

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young lady of eighteen. I care very much for a chauffeur whom I see quite often, but am not acquainted with him. I am considered very pretty and agreeable and have often seen him looking at me with admiration. Will you please tell me how to gain his acquaintance and respect and later his love.
LOVELORN.

YOU are too young to talk or think of love. Also there is nothing you can do in this particular situation without subjecting yourself to criticism. My advice to you is to forget, for the present, at least, the young man of whom you speak.

Made Standard by the French Government

The French Government ordered 200,000 boxes of Cadum ointment for use in its Army and Navy, which is indisputable evidence of its high character. The formula from which it is made thus meets the requirements of the War and Health Departments of France, and Cadum becomes one of the standard remedies of the world. Cadum ointment is wonderfully soothing and healing to an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin, and has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from tormenting skin troubles. It stops the irritation and itching at once, and begins healing with the first application. Obstinate cases of eczema, sores, eruptions, rashes, chafings and other skin disorders usually yield to its curative properties. Trial box, tin, large box, 25c. —Advertisement.

Paris Hats of the Hour

Republished by Special Permission of HARPER'S BAZAR, the Oldest and Greatest Woman's Magazine

Maria Guy, the famous milliner, has selected her latest creations to be shown exclusively in Harper's Bazar, and has posed them on the best dressed woman in Paris, the beautiful Forzane.

AN immense bow of black tulle, poised lightly but effectively at the back of a small black straw shape charming for the Bois, takes on a new air when outlined in a black jet beading.

ON another of the small shapes, so becoming to Forzane, Maria Guy has dotted tips of black ostrich around the crown, allowing them to peep coquettishly over the brim.

ZOE The Story of a Great Love

(Copyright, Associated Newspapers, Ltd. So far this story is U. S. A. held by International News Service.)

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.

"SO that is far as your interest in Godfrey's honor goes, is it? I thought I was mistaken. Everything can go before you will give up that doll with the cornflower blue eyes."

And Noel Crawley knew only too well that that was perfectly true. Eva Warren stood supreme in his life, and before her Brooke dwindled into insignificance.

"I absolutely refuse!" he repeated. "The proposition is preposterous!"

"Very well," calmly retorted Zoe, "let things take their course. It seems to me that you won't have much chance, either. However, I've made my offer."

"And I've declined it emphatically!" responded Crawley, with growing heat. "Many thanks; but no—not a thousand times no!"

CRAWLEY GOES OVER THE CIRCUMSTANCES.

Zoe had left him as a stranger. There had been no suggestion of their ever meeting again. The impression of her low, clear laugh left upon him was peculiarly disconcerting. It was so unnatural, so suggestive, and he could not get the feeling out of his mind that she was keeping something back from him—that she contemplated doing something.

Yesterday her leaving had been very different. He had had to coax and caress her, to argue with her, calm her, and promise her a hundred impossible things, and even at length he had succeeded in bringing her down to the plane of common sense and reason, and she had consented to go, he had gripped her hands with the desperation of a man bidding farewell to an old life that was passing beyond recall.

He remembered her look then. It was like, and yet so different from, the look he had seen in her eyes to-day. Then she had seemed like a woman whose soul was dead.

"There is blackness in my soul, Noel," she had said yesterday; and there was an uncanny solemnity in her beautiful, vibrant voice. "You have broken my heart. It matters not whether I die today, tomorrow or next year. My life is over. But the day you marry this girl—this Eva Warren—I will kill myself!"

But today she had left him as if he had been a chance acquaintance on whom she had called.

And now, more than an hour after ward, he was still there thinking—eternally thinking.

What a weak and inert fool he was, to be sure! He rose to his feet and clenched his hands.

"I'm in a devil of a hole!" he muttered. "And there's only one way out of it."

The clock in the hall struck seven. By this time Brooke and his wife would be at Hutchington. He had wasted the whole day. And yet not wasted, since he had found that out way.

"Yes, I'll do it," he said grimly, "and take the risk. The other is impossible. I might as well want the moon as fifteen thousand pounds."

He busied himself by packing up tubes of paint, brushes, palette, and all the other paraphernalia of his craft into his large sketching box. His eyes gleamed rather wildly and every now and then he stopped and shivered, as if an icy blast had caught him.

HE FORMULATES HIS DARING SCHEME

A very great deal would depend on luck; everything did, still, he had good reason to trust to his luck just now. He was en veine, but, what was far more to the point, he was desperate—as desperate as ever a man had been.

Bond street was comparatively deserted. A few motor-omnibuses hummed along, a few pedestrians. All the shops were closed.

The taxi pulled up outside the Leveredge Gallery. The green flag had been furled for the night. Crawley noticed that a written notice was posted on both the "Circe" bills, stating that the exhibition was closed temporarily for a few hours, but would open tomorrow from ten to five as usual. So Leveredge had been as good as his word.

Mr. Hancock, the caretaker, was a long time in answering the summons; but he came at last. He was an elderly man, broad of head, with white, mutton-chop whiskers, and a clean-shaven upper lip and chin. He knew Crawley well, and appeared greatly surprised to see him. He was in the middle of an evening meal, he told the artist, and excused himself for his delay.

"All right, Hancock," said Crawley. "Just take those things from the taxi. I want to spend an hour on 'Circe.'"

Crawley nodded.

"Must do it," he said. "There's no other time. But—but surely, Mr. Leveredge told you?"

"No, he didn't, sir," answered Hancock.

"Oh, well, never mind," said Crawley. "It makes no difference. I can manage. It will only take an hour or two, perhaps less."

Mr. Hancock was unsuspicious. Why should he be otherwise? Mr. Crawley was an important personage whose word was law. He hastened to obey the artist's instructions. Crawley paid the chauffeur and followed Hancock and his paint-box into the main salon of the Leveredge Gallery, the man switching on the electric light as he went along.

This Liquid Attacks Hair Under the Skin

To gain control of coarse, bristly growths which have been caused by the unwise use of pastes, rub-on preparations and other things which merely remove hair from the surface of the skin, you must use De Miracle, the original liquid hair remover. Art de la Mode says: De Miracle is "the best method." Only publications of the highest character are quoted by us. Beware of so-called hair removers which are supposedly recommended through bogus quotations from so-called magazines which do not exist.—Advertisement.

Gloriol Wavolene Makes Your Hair Curl

Curl your hair with either iron or kids as usual, then while curling moisten the hair with Gloriol Wavolene, and it will cause the curl or wave to stay in the hair a long time, and your hair will fit ever ready for a hurried toilette.

Extra moisture will not take the curl out of the hair, if Gloriol Wavolene is used. You can dance all evening and your hair will not be straying around your face in a very unkempt way.

Some users have found that continued use of Gloriol Wavolene produces a permanent, natural wave to the hair. It is sold on a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back.

Always use Gloriol toilet articles. Gloriol Balm Vanishing Cream, Gloriol Emollient, Gloriol Shampoo and Gloriol Face Powder. —Advertisement.

MRS. THOMPSON TELLS WOMEN

How She Was Helped During Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am just 53 years of age and during Change of Life I suffered for six years terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief. Every month the pains were intense in both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I tried it at once and found much relief. After that I had no pains at all and could do my housework and shopping the same as always. For years I have praised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me, and shall always recommend it as a woman's friend. You are at liberty to use my letter in any way."—Mrs. Thomson, 649 W. Russell St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics of harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for women's ills known.

ATTRACTIONS OF THE WEEK AT BOSTON THEATRES

BOSTON THEATRE NOW SHOWS FILMS

The Boston Theatre is the latest playhouse to open its doors to the loud call for "reel" life. The classic playhouse launched forth into the film world yesterday with a splendid program of moving pictures topped off by the famous Boston Fadettes led by Caroline Nichols.

The appearance of the stage is like a slide or photograph at first glance. The orchestra, composed of over forty women, all dressed in hand-some white gowned, await the signal of their leader to start their harmonious melody in motionless position, presenting a wonderful scene.

The motion pictures are of the high class variety and have met with the instant approval of the large audiences who have already attended. In one of the features Valli Valli, the famous English actress, stars. The British beauty played the leading role in B. A. Rolfe's production of Minnie Madern Fiske's success, "The High Road."

Lovers of wild animals were treated to a motion picture that is second to none in Edward Salisbury's Wild Animal Life. The wonderful picture, which was completed after many hardships and three years' work, has many thrilling incidents.

Globe Theatre.

Another splendid vaudeville show was presented at the Globe Theatre yesterday, headed by Josephine Davis, in a repertoire of exclusive songs. Miss Davis' offering made a decided hit with the large audiences. Others were Princeton and Yale, in a comedy sketch entitled, "600 Miles from Broadway;" The Berlin Serenaders, in "We'll Have a Jubilee," was also seen.

A Single Application Will Banish Objectionable Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive. With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left soft, clear and hairless. This treatment will not pluck the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be careful to get real delatone.—Advertisement.

Announce Stars for Greek Plays

Euripides' "Iphigenia in Tauris," which its translator calls a romantic comedy, and Euripides' "The Trojan Women," regarded by many as the strongest war play ever written, will be presented by the Lillah McCarthy-Granville Barker management in two open-air performances on the afternoons of May 18 and 19 in the Harvard Stadium, under the auspices of the English and classical departments of Harvard University.

The cast will contain, besides Lillah McCarthy, such well-known players as Edith Wynne Matthison, Crystal Herne, Gladys Hanson and Alma Kruger, all of whom have had unusual experience in reading blank verse and in operatic performances.

Modern Theatre.

Nance O'Neil gave further evidence of her popularity with local amusement seekers at the Modern Theatre yesterday when empathy audience turned out to greet the eminent star in a photo-play entitled, "Princess Romanoff," based on Victorien Sardou's famed "Fedora," and produced by the famous Fox Film Studio. Miss O'Neil has cemented a firm foundation in the forerunks of popular movie stars, and it seems more than likely that the silent drama will claim the distinguished artiste for some time to come. Another feature was the opening installment of the new serial, "The Goddess," with Anita Stewart and Earl Williams in the leading parts. The latest Pathe weekly, several comic and dramatic photo-plays and some high class vaudeville were included in the program.

Park Theatre.

The Park Theatre program that was presented yesterday, and which will be repeated for the entire week, was one of the best that has ever been offered at that theatre. It consisted of a triple bill, made up of Mary Pickford, in "Fanchon the Cricket," in five parts; Charlie Chaplin, in a two-part screen, entitled, "The Tramp"; and W. S. Hart, in a finely conceived and acted photo-play of western life, in five parts. Along with this immense bill was shown the Park Topical Review, Paramount Travel Series and two excellent acts of vaudeville.

Exeter Street Theatre.

"Snobs," with Victor Moore as star, was the attraction at the Exeter yesterday. "Snobs" is a picture version of the comedy of the same name, which ran for a season in New York city. The last three days of the week "Ray Bleason," a delightful photo adaptation of David Belasco's American drama, will be shown. Its romantic qualities and its reference to the great national struggle of a half century ago combine to make this subject appealing. Other pictures, with vocal and instrumental numbers, make up the program.

St. James Theatre.

A splendid performance, one of the best of the season, was presented at the St. James Theatre yesterday. Among the feature acts to appear were Wilson Bros. in an original offering; the Hippodrome Four, in one of the best comedy acts seen here this season, and the Berlin Serenaders. It is announced that on Thursday, Friday and Saturday Dorothy Jeard and part of "The Diamond from the Sky" will be shown.

NORA BAYES HEADS BILL AT KEITH'S

There's something about the way she does it that makes you want to hear just one more song from Nora Bayes—who is at Keith's this week.

And perhaps if you are persistent about it she will grant you just one more. Nora's songs are always pleasant to hear, and you can always understand them. And when there is just a bit of pathos or serious thought in them she rises to the occasion and no more—she makes you feel it surely enough, but delicately enough to let her song of the "Honolulu Kiss."

The "Honolulu Kiss" tells the story of a little Hoola-Hoola Maid and a Jolly Jack Tar. And of course the Jolly Jack Tar was right. It's a good song.

Nora has a song that goes "Sister Susie" several better and of which the enthusing chorus runs thus:

Mother's going baking cakes for the Fair
Brother's now learning babies to dance
Father's home tasting baby Belgian
Sarah's [illegible] sisters, making guernseys
For the Belgians
Or, [illegible] all sewing—oh so
Maggie [illegible] and Maud are making muffens
For the Belgians
While Winnie winds the wool when they
Sister Susie's knitting socks and Susie's
[illegible] and [illegible]
And [illegible] how he puts up with
A life

A companion piece to this and one that merits with considerable favor concerns the bravery of Father leading the charge before the bullcalf board.

Yesterday she sang two other songs that were also well received. Like most of the vaudeville stars of the day she does not change her costumes with every song. The one she wore seemed to be quite a success, however, from the expressions of approval noted. It was of —on, well, it was a success anyway.

A notable bill surrounds Miss Bayes. Perhaps the greatest fun provoker being Chick Sale, who presents the characters of the old time village school, aided only by a few quick changes in makeup. He in turn appears as school ma'am, several kinds of pupils and two members of the school board.

A young lady billed as "Ameta," offers a beautiful spectacle as a "fire dancer."

Donald Kerr and Ilie Weston appear in wild eccentric dances. Will Morrissey and Dolly Hackett have a unique act accompanied by moving pictures. The Avon Four have a farce named "The New Teacher." Eva Condon, Jack Devereaux and company appear in a one-act play "The Same Old Thing." Eddie Cantor and Al Lee appear as comedians.

Orpheum Theatre.

Heading an all star vaudeville show at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday was James DeVitt and Company, in a comedy sketch, "Holding Out," which was very amusing. Another feature was the Clevelands, in an original offering. An added feature on the bill was "Wanda," the seal with the human brain, who performed many marvelous stunts.

Howard Athenaeum.

There was a big program at the Howard Athenaeum yesterday, presented by the Violet Mascotte "Beauty Hunch Burlesquers," in which all the girls were pretty and shapely. In the continuous part of the show a number of big features were given.

Plays That Remain.

"A PAIR OF SIXES" is now on its 20th week at the Wilbur Theatre, of all the farces of the season this seems to have taken a firmer grip on public favor than any of its rivals. Although this had been announced as the final week, the demand for seats has forced an extension of two more weeks on the engagement.

* * *

"THE LAST LAUGH" began its first full week at the Court last evening. This farce is a riot from the start and is admirably played by Edward Abeles and his companions.

* * *

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" continues strong at the Tremont. Now in its second week with a capacity audience, a condition that has held since its arrival in Boston.

* * *

"THE REVOLT" is now on its final week at the Shubert. In spite of the really strong drama of the year in many ways, it is a frank discussion of the double moral standard.

Waldron's Casino.

The Globe Trotters, presenting a musical burlesque, entitled, "The Dowry Seekers," was the attraction at Waldron's Casino yesterday. An excellent book has been provided, which deals with an eccentric millionaire, who promises a handsome dowry on each of his five daughters, on condition that each marry a man of their own nationality. As each daughter was born of a different mother and in a different land, many humorous complications result.

Scollay Square Olympia.

A pretentious program was shown at the Scollay Square Olympia Theatre yesterday, which included the Ramsdens, with songs and minstrelsy; Ward and Brothers, popular acrobatic Cirus and Drake, in a singing and talking skit, entitled, "The Unbroken Novice;" Little Lord Roberts, a tiny comedian, in "The Lost Boss," a domestic sketch; Weston and Ward, in singing, talking and dancing, and the United States Jackies, in music, drilling, wall scaling, singing, talking and dancing.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

A moving picture with a thousand startling and gripping scenes is the bill for the first week at the Bowdoin Square Theatre. The title to this feature is, "The Line-Up at Police Headquarters." The vaudeville portion of the bill was one of especial merit, and presented the Three Burkes in an act of rare skill and grace.

Stock at Majestic.

The Summer stock season at the Majestic Theatre will begin next Monday afternoon, when The Lincoln Players, in support of Lily Cahill, will be seen in George Broadhurst's play, "Bought and Paid For." Miss Cahill made a host of friends in Boston when she was the star player of "Under Cover," during the twenty-eight weeks' run at the Plymouth Theatre last season.

Radcliffe Girls to Give Idler Play

The cast for the Idler play, "Beauty and the Beasts," by Booth Tarkington, will be given in the Agassiz House by the Radcliffe girls Sylvia Cartee, Marion Graves, Elizabeth Hawthorne and Abbie Tuller will take the principal parts.

'MAGGIE PEPPER' AT CASTLE SQUARE

"Maggie Pepper," Charles Klein's play of department store life, will never cease to find favor with the play-going public if the appreciation manifested by the large audience at the Castle Square Theatre last evening be taken as an indication.

Doris Oliver as Maggie Pepper, the heroine of the play, rises from the post of cash girl and by rights should have passed on into the vacated place of buyer, but is deprived of her reward by the manager.

This is the condition when the young lawyer returns. She does not know him but at their first meeting manages to impart to him as much about the way his property is being managed that he decides she must help him save his business and that she becomes his secretary. He falls in love with her just as if he were not already betrothed to the niece of the beneficial manager of the business who had almost ruined them.

Of course Maggie has to suffer first as every heroine must. The attentions of her employer are discussed, and family skeletons are paraded before in the law, her gambling husband and their child, whom Maggie loves more than life itself. It is of course the wealthy lover who comes only with a wound and Maggie who binds him.

The owner of the store and hero of the play, Wilson L. Carleton, scored a decided hit in last night's performance. Alfred Lunt as the crook and swindler, Mac Roberts, Mildred as his wife, and Dudley Hawley, who will serve much credit for their clever acting.

The tragic death of Charles Klein and his husband's end a gloom over the audience that was broken by the genius of the playwright still lives and in his comedy relief, of which we find a play that is destined to prove a lasting memorial to his name.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The mystery of the "phantom car" in the next Indianapolis 500-mile race is no more. The machine is an Ogren, known as the "Blue Bird," driven by Wilson A. Kite, of Chicago, and driven by Jimmy Hill of the same city.

Hale reason for announcing his car's identity at this time is that the machine is now in satisfactory shape and that he is confident it will make a good showing. The car is a 1,000 H.P. motor, privately rebuilt, and has been brought to completion only this week.

* * *

Ernie Plummer, race winning favorite is some more trying off late on the Indianapolis motor speedway. Ernie Ovbee, who will drive it in the next 500-mile race, has had charge on the track for a thorough workout after having finished rebuilding the car.

* * *

An extensive trip through the East has just been completed by C. W. Twyman, general manager of the United States Motor Company. Its results are that in all the fifteen years of experience he has never seen such activity in the automobile business as he is taking place now.

* * *

War order prosperity has a rival in the domestic automobile business of the United States. Everywhere automobiles are being bought as never before. For the first three months of this year, sales of automobiles in the United States increased 38 per cent. over the same three months in 1914. The Spring selling season now, now at its height, will probably show even a greater increase. Since February 15, Franklin sales have increased 107 per cent. over same period last year.

Two Fairs at Half Fare; Exposition Rates Cut in Two

The railroads have greatly reduced their fares and made it possible for you to see both the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions on one ticket. By way of the Rock Island Route (C. R. I. & G. R. R.) the cost of a railroad ticket to California and back will be only about $72.50, including the Royal Gorge, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Salt Lake City on the way, stopping off at any point desired.

Returning you may enjoy a sea trip on ocean to Portland, see Mount Rainier, Seattle, Tacoma, and other cities, Yellowstone National Park or Colorado Park—the wonders of the world!

You will have a trip like this very often. You may be the next winners on smile and if you are interested in how to go there long you can get all the information you want by writing to Jno. Sebastian, New England Passenger Agent, Rock Island Lines, 366 Washington St., Boston. Phone Main 4367.—Advertisement.

From Thin to Plump—Girls.

The expression of happiness and gratitude of several of his young lady patients for whom he prescribed the recently successful flesh tonic, Sargol, prompts a well-known physician to relate that a physician in one of the medical publications and it comes as a surprise to the ordinary person to learn the heart troubles of distress which seem to afflict many young people who are abnormally thin are often entirely due to the fact that the health cannot be maintained regularly for several months, if the body is not well nourished, now obtainable of the best therapists and apothecary shops in sealed packages with complete instructions for self-administration.—Advertisement.

of a $6000 collection of original canvases from the brush of

Greenbecker

These oil paintings portray the 1915 styles for men as decreed by the Supreme Court of Fashion, interpreted by Mr. Cable, America's greatest designer, and artistically clothes by the House of Kuppenheimer, America's greatest tailoring concern.

This exhibit will remain for one week only in our centre window on Summer Street. It is of great interest, both as the result work of Mr. Greenbecker (one of the greatest of contemporaneous American artists), and as a faithful representation in oils of the styles which the best dressed men will wear this season and next.

First Series "D" Coupon Today

Start Your Collections Now

Series "D" in the American's California Tours Contest starts today and with it—another opportunity to start with a rush on a new contest period.

If you will put forth enough energy NOW to be one of the twenty-five leaders in the race now under way, then you will know what it means to feast your eyes on the glories of your country and to thrill to the knowledge of her advance in the fields of art, science, industry and all the other walks of life.

These splendid tours are indeed worthy of anyone's best effort. The twenty-five guests of this paper to start from Boston on July 24th for the Pacific Coast, to be gone over three weeks, will return to the East better citizens and prouder Americans than when they left.

It did not take Tennyson to prove that "Things seen are mightier than things heard"; you may hear about the Expositions over and over again, but you can form no idea of their immensity or their perfection compared with what you can get by a personal visit.

You know thousands of persons who are going, but you may rest assured not one of them will travel with more comfort or in any more luxury than the twenty-five who leave Boston under the auspices of this newspaper.

This is one of the reasons why the contestants are working so hard to win a place with the American's party—we received letters noting other trips given by this newspaper testifying that the reality always exceeds the promise. This reputation is so well-known that it acts as a further incentive to the ambitious candidates in the race.

Let no one run away with the idea that there will be a "walk-over." There is no such thing when the prizes offered are so attractive as in this case.

For, remember, not only do these wonder trips go to the first twenty-five in the race, also cash prizes totaling $1,250, but, undoubtedly, every striving candidate fully realizes what "DE LUXE" means when it is coupled with the name of the Boston American.

Candidates should remember that they have until 5 p. m. on next Monday, May 17, in which to send or mail their Series "C" coupons to the Contest Manager at 5 Winthrop Square.

THE REV. DR. C. H. PARKHURST'S VERDICT ON

"The Birth of a Nation"

The Publication of Which Mr. Rolfe Cobleigh Suppressed.

THOMAS DIXON: "I called at Mr. Cobleigh's office to ask why, after demanding the report of Dr. Parkhurst, he had failed to print it."

ROLFE COBLEIGH "As for failing to publish in The Congregationalist Dr. Parkhurst's report, we had no space for it."

LET THE TRUTH BE KNOWN

Even though the opponents of the play pigeon-hole the evidence that does not favor their cause!

By CHARLES H. PARKHURST, D. D.

It is impossible to witness the film drama, "The Birth of a Nation," and not want to say something about it.

Every one who has seen it IS saying something about it. When one has been crowded upon, pressed down and run over, it is against Nature not to make some kind of an outcry.

That is the way one feels when coming out of the theatre. The thing is vast. It is overwhelming. Nothing like it has ever before been put upon the stage.

The tension of the performance is but a single feature of it—but it is that which one feels most poignantly after three straight hours. It begins in an easy way but commences soon to find its muscle and goes on to the end pounding upon one's senses with blows that come heavier and heavier, more and more rapid.

IT IS NOT APPARENT WHAT ARE THE GROUNDS OF THE OBJECTIONS URGED AGAINST IT, NOR WHAT IS THE ANIMUS OF THOSE WHO ARE SCHEMING TO HAVE THE EXHIBITION PROHIBITED BY COURT PROCEEDINGS.

The National Board of Censorship has approved it and a second assault was made convened again and reaffirmed their approval. The popular endorsement which the play has since received by the thousands who are seeing it daily will require more than small prejudices or moral eccentricities to disturb. In the meantime efforts to suppress it are thus far successful in nothing so much as in giving it wider and more remunerative publicity.

The intimate familiarity shown with the events of the Reconstruction Period, along with the detailed scholarly study made of the wider territory of events which the play covers, renders the production one of surpassing educational value to those who were either young children still or even unborn in the stirring years of '60 to '70. A BOY CAN LEARN MORE TRUE HISTORY AND GET MORE OF THE ATMOSPHERE OF THE PERIOD BY SITTING DOWN FOR THREE HOURS BEFORE THE FILM WHICH MR. GRIFFITH HAS PRODUCED WITH SUCH ARTISTIC SKILL, THAN BY WEEKS AND MONTHS OF STUDY IN THE CLASS ROOM.

This drama is a telling illustration of the possibilities of motion pictures as an instrument of instruction in History.

The criticism that it exhibits the Negro in an unfortunate light and that it is calculated to engender racial animosity is fully met by the consideration that it represents the Negro, not as he is now at all, but as he was in the days when he had just had the chains broken from him, and when he was rioting in the deliciousness of a liberty, so new and untried, that he had not yet learned to understand it and was ignorant as a baby of the way to use it. It is in this respect exactly true to history and if it reflects upon the Negro as he was then is a compliment to the black man of today. An exhibition of such lawlessness might not have been proper thirty or forty years ago such proprieties change with the passing of time.

The battle scenes which Mr. Griffith has depicted are of surpassing power and realism. A well written description of a battlefield allows the place and the occasion to be invested with features of magnificence, with the heroism of the contestants and the glory of the victors. On Griffith's screen we see the real thing. There is no magnificence, no glory, but horror, and stark butchery. It sickens with the sense of man's inhumanity to man. IT MAKES WAR DESPICABLE AND DEVILISH. IT CONVEYS AN INDELIBLE LESSON TO ALL WHO HAVE BEEN BEWITCHED BY THOSE WHO HAVE DECKED OUT THE NAKED HIDEOUSNESS OF WAR WITH TINSEL DRAPERY.

There are also scenes of surpassing dignity and beauty done by a master artist's hand—the signing by the President of the Proclamation for volunteers which marked the end of the old regime, the surrender of Lee to Grant and the assassination of the President in Ford's Theatre.

The tender affection in which Mr. Lincoln is held was manifested in the way the great audience received the scene of a heart broken Southern mother pleading with him for her son sentenced to death as a guerilla. Every eye was dim with tears in the strangling hush that fell on the theatre.

What might not our country have been saved had the problem of Reconstruction been left to the Great Heart—the one man who compassed within himself the resources of the intelligence, experience, breadth and sympathy of Abraham Lincoln!

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" HAS MY UNQUALIFIED APPROVAL.

(Signed.) C. H. PARKHURST.

TRULY WARNER

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

HARVARD TRACK MEN ARE WORKING HARD TO PREPARE FOR YALE GAMES SATURDAY

ROBIDEAU MEETS GALLANT TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

A HARD, fast battle is expected when Gilbert Gallant, Chelsea's aggressive lightweight, and Sam Robideau of Philadelphia exchange broadsides in a twelve-round skirmish at the Atlas A. A. tonight. A number of even money bets have been made on the result of the contest. Some of the wise men have made Gallant a 5 to 4 choice, while a few other gentlemen who are famous for picking winners are favoring Robideau and are backing their opinions at odds of 5 to 4.

After giving all the "dope" at hand the "once over," we have decided that it is best not to even try to name the winner of tonight's contest. Both men are high class performers and very well matched. Each of them is able to punch hard and as a result the tussle is liable to end inside of the limit.

Gallant and Robideau have already engaged in two bouts. The first meeting was staged in Fall River a couple of years ago and honors were even after twelve spirited rounds of fighting. The Chelsea youth had the best of the going in the early rounds of the encounter, but Robideau finished strong and his slashing work in the last few rounds enabled him to secure a draw.

THE second battle between Gallant and Robideau was held in Bridgeport, Ct., last Winter. A sensation was created when Robideau scored with a knockout in the fourth frame. It was a furious battle up to that point. There was but little clever boxing. The rival glove men fought at close quarters and exchanged deadly left and right hand blows. Robideau was knocked down in one of these setto mixups but managed to regain his feet and later put over the winning punch.

Robideau's victory in Bridgeport does not mean that he will also finish in front tonight. It was fortunate in hitting the Chelsea lightweight on the right spot when they last met and he might be able to repeat his feat if he should clash with Alex McLean's protege every day for the next month.

GALLANT has prepared himself carefully for this evening's tussle. He has been training at Cliff Park, Milk Street and Joe Farren. He announces that he is fit to put up the greatest fight of his career and will not have an alibi to offer if he is defeated.

If Gallant is successful in his contest tonight, he will be signed to battle Freddy Welsh, the world's lightweight champion. Gallant and Welsh were originally scheduled to meet at the Arena last Saturday night but it was necessary to call off the match when Welsh injured one of his eyelids.

THE Chelsea youth, however, must win tonight before he can talk business with Welsh. He has not an easy task before him, as Robideau is one of the best lightweights in the East. He is a fair boxer, while he is a hard hitter and is clever with each hand. Gallant is an open style of boxer. His defense is not so hard to hit as are the gloves men who keep jabbing with their left hands from mid-ring to mid-ring regardless of which boxer wins we should witness a mix which will be worth traveling a few miles to see.

AN attractive preliminary card has also been arranged. Ray Wood of Fall River will meet Peter De Lucca, the North End boxer, in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. There will also be two six-round whirls. Eddie Flynn of Lynn will battle with "Young" Brown, who hails from Revere, while Howard McRae of Cambridge will try and dispose of "Young" Josie of North Adams.

TERRY BROOKS has hit the battle trail once again. Through his manager, Manie Marks, the hard hitting lightweight, announces that he would like to secure a match with "Battling" Brown. Brooks realizes that Brown is a member of the welterweight division, but he believes in that old saying which runs that the bigger they are the 'arder they fall.

Lannin Would Fight to Finish

NEW YORK, May 11.—President Joseph Lannin of the Boston Red Sox gave his views of the baseball war before he left this city for the West with his team.

"Honest competition is not the object of my criticism," said Lannin, with a show of feeling. "The methods employed by the Federal League people in trying to kill the game and ruin club owners have been despicable. These fellows have stooped to all sorts of underhanded tricks. They have made contract jumpers out of well-known ball players and also have shaken the public's confidence in the sport.

"The Federal League now faces inevitable disaster and is entitled to neither help nor sympathy. Even the organized baseball recognized the Feds they could not escape financial ruin. For that reason there will be no compromise, no peace. The fight will go to a finish. Let Chance go stone broke than give in one inch. Now that we have them on one of baseball on the ropes. Let them be counted out by the referee, the great American baseball public."

HARVARD STARS PREPARE FOR YALE

It was nothing but the lightest kind of work for the Harvard track team yesterday, and Coach "Pooch" Donovan put in a very busy afternoon keeping his charges from putting too much stress in their work. Coach Donovan figured that after the strenuous meet with Cornell last Saturday the Crimson athletes were entitled to a rest, especially in view of the fact that the annual Harvard-Yale dual meet is to take place next Saturday afternoon in New Haven.

Harvard made a remarkably fine showing against Cornell and the unexpected strength of the Crimson has completely changed the outlook of the Harvard and Yale meeting. Up to the time that the Cornell-Harvard points had been totalled last Saturday, Harvard was not conceded a chance against the "Big Red," but now the Crimson is a slight favorite.

The acquisition of Charlie Brickley and Todd Hardwick will strengthen not only the track but the field events. Both of these well known athletes are entered in the shotput and are good for places. Brickley and Hardwick are with the baseball squad, but as there is no game scheduled for Saturday Coach Sexton has given them permission to go with the track team to New Haven.

The Harvard athletes will get down to hard work again this afternoon and will continue the grind until Thursday. Only light work will be undertaken on Friday and all the men are expected to be in the best possible condition.

Ouimet Leads Big Field of Golfers at Baltimore

BALTIMORE, May 11. — Francis Ouimet, national champion, led the largest field that has ever started in the Baltimore Country Clubs annual Spring golf tournament. So many names came in late that six sixteens instead of four had to be provided.

Many metropolitan candidates played. Recent lack of rain left the course rougher than usual, but reasonably good scoring was expected. With the great field the entire day was given to the qualifying round.

The first ten in the qualifying round were:

Francis Ouimet, Woodland	73
Warren Corkran, Baltimore Country	75
A. S. Worthington, Shawnee	75
George Sokol, Baltimore Country	76
F. W. Dingley, Belmont Springs	77
J. H. Ross, Baltimore Country	77
C. D. Hopkins, Richmond	77
W. C. Fownes, Woodland	77
T. A. Ashby, Woodland	77

Jeanette Defeated by Jim Johnson

MONTREAL, May 11.—Furnishing the surprise of the local boxing season, Battling Jim Johnson shaded Joe Jeanette in a ten-round bout before the members of the Canadian Athletic Club at Sohmer Park.

It was not until after Johnson had piled up a good lead in points that Jeanette showed anything like his best form, and he had then an insufficient number of rounds to equalize the advantage his opponent had gained. Johnson forced the battling from the start of the line.

Near the conclusion of the third round Johnson struck Jeanette low, sending him to the floor, but Joe refused to claim the fight on a foul.

VANITY KEEPS JOE CHOYNSKI, VETERAN RING STAR, YOUNG

By ED W SMITH.

"Being vain of my prowess has kept me young.

"When one loses vanity he deteriorates."

This from the philosophy of Joseph Bartlett Choynski, remarkable boxer, who at the age of forty-seven years won a battle like either night with a knockout, his opponent being a young heavyweight of twenty-four years.

It's not a matter of Age—simply a matter of feeling young, and presto, you are young. It's a theory as old as the hills and was thought worth immortalizing years ago into a variety of axioms and sayings. Joe appears to be one of the very few fighters brainy enough to bring the theory into actual ring practice.

GETS MERE MENTION.

The fact that Choynski had won a fight at the age of forty-seven, or nearly that—he was born on November 8, 1868—was worth only a few lines in any of the Boston papers. It was a mere mention and didn't even glorify Choynski by mentioning his advanced age.

Having known the smart old fox of the ring for a great many years, and since he first starred as a member of the string of boxers "Parson" Charles E. Davies possessed, head of which was the mighty Peter Jackson, we thought there might be a little story back of this incident and wired the veteran at Pittsburgh.

Joe responded at once and the first line of his letter that caught our eye was the quotation at the start of this article.

IS BRIGHT, BRAINY FELLOW.

Mind you, Joe is not an ordinary boxer. If he were he would now be part of the scrap heap that litters pugilistic history. He is a bright, brainy fellow and to show you will hand you a few excerpts from his communication. Here they are:

"After all these years—as even dozen, to be exact—it seemed like a new experience to re-enter the ring until I heard the gong. Then, like the old fire horse, the latent memories were aroused and it was like old times. Joe writes. Doesn't mind him what a fighter usually writes, does it? Then comes a little confession from the clever Joseph II.:

"I have added speed and an increased punch, BUT, and be sure and notice this BUT, when the big guy bustled and bumped into me IT HURT.

CAN STAND THE PUNCH.

"I didn't mind the punches and seem to be able to assimilate them as of yore and my judgment is excellent, just as you sport writers used to describe it back in the dark ages when I classed as the leader of that heterogeneous class between 160 and 180 pounds.

"Did I care to enter the ring in real earnest a week of rough work would fit me and while one is in the rough going, which certainly is a good way to describe the present day style of work, you get a kick in every day and am as strong as a Hercules, but I'm not training for vaude stuff. It's different from the ordinary run of training.

"I'm vain enough to have some pictures taken and am sending you one. That's part of the game—being vain of how prowess has kept me young. When one loses vanity, Edward, he deteriorates."

CHOYNSKI KNOCKOUT COMING.

Which are SOME WORDS from a famous old veteran. And in a few days we will spin you a yarn about how Joe figured in one of the most famous knockouts in ring history.

Nate Prazin, the brick-topped boxer, who used to be one of our dandiest little amateur boxers, is raving just now about his brother Harry. The latter, during a term of service on the cruiser Galveston of the Asiatic squadron, became featherweight champion of the United States Navy. He had upward of fifty fights, and won them all, a large percentage being via the K. O. route.

Harry is in Chicago now and training hard for some prospective matches. He would especially like to get a crack at Matty McCue—just as a starter, he says. You've got to give it to Harry for nerve, anyway.

OFFER CUP FOR CRICKET STARS

The members of the Massachusetts Cricket League received an agreeable surprise when that organization was presented with a cup for perpetual competition by John J. Heys of the U. S. M. A. A. Cricket Club. The trophy will be held each year by the championship club.

It was not believed that there would be any cup to compete for in the Massachusetts State Cricket League this year. The teams in this circuit competed for Cook's cup last season, but this trophy is now the property of the Beverly Cricket Club, which won the cup three successive cricket years.

BEVERLY WON COOK'S CUP.

While this story is intended to cover the Heys cup we deem it permissable to say something of the former Cook's cup, presented by Cook of Brockton in 1909, to be competed for until it should have been won three years in succession. It was thought at that time that no other team but the strong Wanderers of Hyde Park would be able to win the cup, being the first president elected upon formation in 1904 and succeeding himself in 1905. The presidents since then have been: Tosford, 1906-07; Pearson, 1908; Stanwood, 1909; Flowers, 1910; Newsham, 1912, and John F. Dixon, 1912-13.

The Heys cup will be played for as long as there is a Massachusetts Cricket League, and President Dixon takes great pride in his action meeting the approval of the donor.

BEST TROPHY IN COUNTRY.

Massachusetts can again boast of having up for competition in cricket the best and largest cup in the country, and perhaps in the world. The measurement of the cup is 19½ inches high, bowl 12 inches, with handles 2 inches wide. The total weight is 15 pounds.

The twelve teams competing this year are: Beverly, Beverly-Blues, Needham, Canton, Everett, St. Gaudens, Brockton, West Indies, West India Wanderers, Standards, Carribean and W. I. Athletics.

Take Moving Pictures of Schools Oarsmen

A. Paul Keith, the president of the B. A. A., has had moving pictures taken of the schoolboy crews in action as a step to encourage the game. Seven crews were pictured, including two crews each from Brookline High, Cambridge Latin, Hyndge Technical and one crew from Huntington School.

NEW YORK TEAM SETS HIGH MARK

The Bergamo Stars of New York, with a total score of 2,642, lead the field of ten-pin bowlers at the Atlantic Coast bowling tournament. Heins rolled 634 and Jim Smith topped 626 of the big pins.

The Towanda Club of Woburn won the Boston city championship with 1,456, two pins more than the Colonial Club of Dorchester and 13 pins better than the Arlington Boat Club.

The best five-men duck pin rolling was done by the Somerville outfit which totalled 1,624, which has only been surpassed by the Chester team. The Somerville rollers competed against Vaughans of Hartford, the Potomacs and Palace teams of Washington, D. C.

A convention was held at Hotel Lenox, where delegates from the several sections of the country and Canada met and decided on the congress in 1915. Syracuse put in a bid but the latter declined. The election of officers resulted in William Gale of Washington being chosen president; Frank Hopkins of Boston first vice president; Joseph Kuhn of Syracuse, second vice-president; Richard Sarsis of Philadelphia, third vice president; John T. Smith of Buffalo fourth vice-president; Michael Sarsis of Providence, treasurer, and John J. Donovan of Boston, secretary.

Five-men games Bergamo, 318, 341, 284, 342, 2,642. Palaces, 307, 337, 1044, 2,544. Bergamo, 307, 337, 1044, 2,544. Bergamo, 307, 337, 1044, 2,544. Potomacs, 307, 337, 1044, 2,544. Potomacs, 307, 337, 1044, 2,544. Potomacs

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were much stronger today, rallying at once because of President Wilson's Philadelphia speech. The upturn included all important essentially issues and although recessions from the morning high followed his statement that he had not defined his policy regarding the Lusitania calamity, traders thought what he said forecasted preservation of peace. Some stocks advanced more after the Cabinet meeting, although nothing was announced as to what had been decided upon. Senator Stone, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, was conferable to the statement there would not be an extra session of Congress. For the week ended May 8 there was a trade balance of $70,555,707 in favor of the United States. From December 1 to April 1 it totalled $704,430,230 or at the stupendous rate of $1,899,056,000 for the year. There was a great deal of short covering today. In the last hour markets grew still stronger.

Half an hour from the close trading increased in volume and among gains in New York were Amalgamated 2¾, American Can 2¾, American Smelting 2¾, Chino 1¾, High Copper 2½, Inspiration 2¼, Canadian Pacific 2¾, Atchison 2¼, Chesapeake & Ohio 2, Lehigh Valley 2, New Haven 2¾, Reading 2¾, Southern Pacific 1¾, St. Paul 1¾, Union Pacific 1¾, U. S. Steel 2¾, American Sugar 2¾, American Locomotive 2¾, Bethlehem Steel 4¾, Goodrich 2¾, Mexican Petroleum 3¾, Pressed Steel Car 2¾, U. S. Rubber 3¾, Westinghouse 4, Baldwin Locomotive 2, Studebaker 3, National Lead 4½, Central Leather 2¾.

Advances in Boston included Alaska Gold 2¾, Allouez 2, Davis-Daly 2, Calumet & Arizona 2¾, Calumet & Hecla 20, Copper Range 2, Granby 2¾, Isle Royale-Northern 2, Osceola 3¾, Quincy 3¾, U. S. Smelting 2¾, St. Mary's Mineral Land 3, American Zinc 2¾, Tamarack 3, Utah Consolidated 2¾, Wolverine 2, New England Fuel 3 and Shoe Machinery 2¼.

MARKETS OPENED STRONG.

Markets were strong at the opening and for awhile during the first hour trading was active in New York. After that it slackened up and was comparatively quiet in the second hour and over midday. A number of issues made larger gains and the average advance was substantial. Americans were firm in London, and markets opened there 1 to 2 points higher. Steel and Union Pacific were very active for awhile. It is understood that there has been heavy accumulation of these and other issues by big brokers on the theory that the early gains were not maintained, but prices were still up when afternoon trading began. Commodity had recovered from their scare. There was considerable buying of coppers.

COPPERS HIGHER HERE.

Coppers and zinc issues advanced at once in Boston and the local list as a whole was as buoyant as stocks in New York. It is understood that orders for 70,000,000 or 80,000,000 pounds of copper are pending. It is stated that one of the largest producers has sold electrolyte on foreign account at a price which nets 13⅝ cents f. o. b. New York. In London spot copper declined 11 17s. and futures 12 2s. 6d., while electrolyte was 15s. higher. Spelter was unchanged.

Wilson Suspends Judgment on China

WASHINGTON, May 11.—President Wilson gave further assurance today that the United States shall exercise no interference with its treaty rights in the demands which Japan has made upon China. He told callers that he had not studied thoroughly the effects of the granting of the Japanese demands will be. He is suspending judgment on the present status of the Japanese-Chinese relations until further advices reach him.

The Japanese Dwarf Can Beat the Chinese Giant

For the Dwarf Is Intelligent and Well Armed. A Lesson for Us in the Japanese-Chinese Situation.

Our navy, the few ships that we have, have just been assembled in New York Harbor, and the citizens have honored and welcomed them.

The officers are able, the sailors are good fighters and intelligent. If there were ENOUGH of those officers, ENOUGH of those sailors and ENOUGH OF THE SHIPS, this country might enjoy peace of mind.

But the people, as they looked at their little toy fleet, and compared it with the size and wealth, and DANGER, of their nation, were forced to think about the situation in China, and to realize that China's plight might be our own tomorrow.

If you see China and Japan in your imagination, you see a little Japanese dwarf and a huge Chinese giant, and you know that the giant is helpless against the dwarf.

When China was threatened, bullied, told that she must accept every one of the twenty-four demands of Japan, she could only delay, make excuses and beg for help from the outside.

You know WHY little Japan could threaten China. You know why every intelligent man in the world takes it for granted that if war comes China will be beaten, and the Japanese will take what they please.

The Japanese dwarf has China at his mercy because the Japanese have recognized conditions. They are PREPARED for war, they have built ships, they have trained men.

And huge, rich, unhappy China has done nothing but drift.

A well-drilled Chinese, with a good repeating rifle, a regiment of Chinese led by trained officers, properly equipped, would be just as good as a regiment of Japanese—or, if not, TWO regiments of Chinese would certainly be as good as one of Japanese—AND CHINA, IF SHE WOULD, COULD HAVE TWO REGIMENTS FOR EVERY JAPANESE ONE.

But China has done nothing. Her population of powerful, patient and courageous men is unprepared, unorganized, unarmed. And the great power that might be the ruler of all Asia is helpless before the threats of a little island people, intelligent enough to KEEP READY.

Whatever you think of conditions in America, of the need of a great navy, you are in no doubt at all ABOUT THE CONDITIONS IN CHINA.

And you know that China's helplessness is due to lack of intelligence as to outside matters among the nations, indifference and military shiftlessness.

The power of Japan you know to be due to the fact that Japanese statesmen have studied Europe. They have realized in what power and safety consist, they have learned a lesson from the other island nation, England, THEY HAVE THEIR BATTLESHIPS and complete naval protection.

They calmly announce that they have a RIGHT to rule in Asia, BECAUSE THEY ARE READY FOR THE JOB.

It would take just one war TO SHOW THE RESEMBLANCE BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND CHINA.

An unarmed American is no better than an unarmed Chinese. Men don't fight in actual battle with intelligence. They fight with repeating rifles, gatling guns, battleships, submarines, aeroplanes, torpedo boats and destroyers.

The people of this nation must realize the condition of affairs on this earth. The twentieth century is beginning as a century of brutal war.

All agreements, treaties and traditions as to human decency are mere scraps of paper.

At any time the war may include a dozen more nations—or all of them, INCLUDING OURSELVES.

It should, of course, be the determination of the United States TO KEEP OUT OF WAR.

We, at least, did not begin this war; we are not responsible for it; we don't WANT it.

But the way to keep out of it is to be prepared for it.

To say to Europe that we do not want to be dragged into the war means nothing. But if we were able to say to Europe, "We are powerful enough to take care of ourselves; we are powerful enough to decide the issue against the nation that provokes us, and we shall do so"—THEN WE SHOULD BE LET ALONE.

We need a powerful navy, we should be building it NOW, intelligently and adequately.

We need government ownership of powder factories, government manufacturing of all kinds of war supplies.

The intelligence that constructed the Panama Canal, THE INTELLIGENCE OF OUR ARMY OFFICERS, WELL TRAINED, should be devoted every day to the service of preparing for what may COME any day.

Men of the army should be working in ammunition factories, gun factories, and well paid for the work.

Our manufacturers are making all kinds of murder instruments for Europe unfortunately. But that which is the misfortune of Europe should be the good fortune of America.

The men that a few months ago were manufacturing steel cars or car wheels are now manufacturing shrapnel and big shells.

The United States Steel Trust is erecting a plant for manufacturing picric acid, which is a basis of most of the high explosives.

Thanks to the European war and the reckless expenditure of money here by foreign nations, this nation has been suddenly made into a great factory for warlike material.

We have here at home everything necessary to supply the government with unlimited ammunition, and thus to supply ourselves WITH A CERTAINTY OF PROLONGED PEACE.

The government should at once buy war tools from all of those capable of making them, and at the same time prepare government factories independent of private owners, of private labor strikes and everything else.

The safety and peace of this country are above every other consideration.

They can be insured only by instant realization of the fact that the world is at war, that we live ON THIS EARTH, and that we must be dragged into the bloody arena, or make ourselves strong enough to keep out of it.

The American who cannot learn the lesson taught by the pitiful condition of China, the giant, can learn no lesson.

Farragut Would Be Proud of Them

On Saturday the Atlantic battleship fleet gathered in the Hudson River off New York city. If the shade of Farragut could return he would find the same spirit in the modern navy as in the days when he clung to the rigging and said: "Damn the torpedoes; go ahead." Men and ships are unsurpassed — but we need a lot more of both.

How Different Kinds of Electricity Furnish the Means for Their Own Detection—A Lunar Illusion—Origin and Order of the Days of the Week

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"HOW can the sign of the electricity on a charged body be determined by means of the electroscope?—J. H."

First charge the electroscope with, say, positive electricity, which would be produced by a glass rod rubbed with silk. Then bring the charged body near the knob. If the charge is positive the gold leaves of the electroscope, already standing apart, will diverge still more; but if the charge is negative they will tend to close up.

"When the full moon shows just above the horizon it looks much larger than when it is directly overhead, and yet it is the same distance away. What is the cause?

It is an optical illusion, due to the presence of a great number of visible objects on the earth, lying at various distances between the eye and the horizon, which have the effect of making the horizon appear to be at a greater distance than the zenith. Owing to the reflection of light from the atmosphere and the clouds the sky appears to us in the form of a material dome or vault, the centre of which is called the zenith. The top of this sky-vault seems nearer than its horizontal edges for the reason just mentioned, viz., that the eye finds no intermediate objects stretching away one behind the other to produce, by perspective, an apparent prolongation of the distance. This being so, it follows that when we see the moon poised on the horizon we instinctively judge its distance to be greater than when it is seen in the sky-vault overhead, in consequence of this error in judging distance the form of the moon on the horizon seems to loom into extraordinary dimensions. As a matter of fact, the moon actually subtends a greater angular diameter when it is overhead than when it is on the horizon, because in the former case it is nearly 4,000 miles nearer the observer.

An Optical Illusion

This kind of optical illusion is often encountered, and it sometimes produces alarming as well as amusing effects. I was once an astonished victim of such a deception while standing on the summit of Mount Etna and looking off across the Mediterranean Sea. A number of far-distant sailing vessels approaching the eastern coast of Sicily on the sky-blue water looked to me like kites floating in the air, a mile or more from the mountains, until a sudden readjustment of the focus of my eyes banished the illusion.

Among Edgar A. Poe's stories is one very much to the present purpose, entitled "The Sphinx." The imaginary victim of illusion in this case is dismayed by the sudden appearance on the opposite shore of the Hudson River of a gigantic monster, which turns out to be nothing but a minute insect, the sixteenth of an inch in length, wriggling its way on an invisible spiderweb, covering the windowpane, within a sixteenth of an inch of the frightened observer's eye.

"Are there any astronomical means of positively ascertaining which of the seven days is the last day of the week?—S. W. G."

Dividing the Week

The week is not one of the natural divisions of time, like the day (measured by the earth's rotation on its axis); the month (measured by the moon's revolution around the earth), and the year (measured by the earth's revolution around the sun.) Nevertheless, the seven-day period called a week has been in use from time immemorial. The names of the days of the week and the order of their occurrence are of unknown, but probably astrological, origin.

The names are based on those of the sun and the moon and the five planets known to the ancients (excluding the earth). Sunday is the sun's day; Monday, the moon's day; Tuesday, Mar's day, Wednesday, Mercury's day; Thursday, Jupiter's day; Friday, Venus' day, and Saturday, Saturn's day. The question of the order in which the days stand in the weekly round is historical, not scientific. The sun's day seems always to have led the procession, and Saturn's to have ended it, but nobody knows exactly why. Plutarch, even in his time, wondered why the order of the days of the week had not been made to follow that of the distances of the planets.

Very likely the variation was based upon some astrological superstition. The early Christians adopted the week as they found it, simply changing the name of the sun's day to the Lord's Day.

Inklings and Thinklings

By WEX JONES

Things we should hate to be just now: John Barleycorn.

Man rushes to court because his wife dishes him out veal stew four days in succession. Should have stuck it out a week and then he'd have been used to it.

Suicide after pinochle—Headline.
Much better before.

One advantage a color-blind man has these days is that his eye won't be knocked out by the orange shoes and purple laces the dear girls are wearing.

Life's mysteries: Monograms on shirt sleeves.

The "s" on the end of the Dardanelles just prevents it from being a needed rhyme to what war is.

George Bernard Shaw approves talking movies. His reason, he says, is that through a combination of phonograph and cinema he will be able to tell his audience what he thinks of it without being hit with 'arf a brick. Doesn't seem very sporting of Shaw; handicaps the audience too much.

How do you like your new flat?

Takes less time to reduce a Turkish fort than to pronounce it.

See that the jolly tars, having lost the words "port" and "stabbd" (as nearly as we can render the pronunciation), are now to lose the word "fathom." Hope the department won't edit Shakespeare's "Full fathom five thy father lies" to "Quite thirty feet deep thy father is submerged."

Where are they—the Cossack girl who captures a regiment single-handed; "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" and General von Kluck?

Perhaps Platt was called the easy boss because he found the Governors so easy.

Someone having remarked that marrying a girl just because she is pretty is like buying a book because it is bound in fancy leather, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat adds that both ornament the parlor. Maybe; but how about the kitchen?

Letters relating to "invisible government" should be written in invisible ink.

THE AWAKENING

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

I LOVE the tropics, where sun and rain
Go forth together, a joyous train,
To hold up the green, gay side of the world,
And to keep earth's banners of bloom unfurled.

I love the scents that are hidden there
By housekeeper Time, in her chests of air;
Strange and subtle and all a-rife,
With vague lost dreams of a by-gone life.

They steal upon you by night and day,
But never a whiff can you take away;
And never a song of a tropic bird
Outside of its palm-decked land is heard.

And nowhere else can you know the sweet,
Soft, "joy-in-nothing" that comes with the heat
Of tropic regions. And yet, and yet,
If in evergreen worlds my ways were set
I would span the waters of widest seas
To see the wonder of waking trees;
To feel the shock of sudden delight
That comes when the orchard has changed in a night
From the Winter nun to the bride of May,
And the harp of Spring is attuned to play
The wedding march, and the sun is priest,
And the world is bidden to join the feast.

Oh, never is felt in a tropic clime,
Where the singing of birds is a ceaseless chime
That leap o' the blood, and the rapture thrill,
That comes to us here, with the first bird's thrill,
And only the eye that has looked on snows
Can see the beauty that lies in a rose.
The lure of the tropics I understand,
But, ho! for the Spring in my native land.

Economic Independence of Woman

By REV. MABEL M. IRWIN

"If any would not work, neither should he eat."

IN the laws that govern human labor, and life dependent upon labor, there is no discrimination of sex. To live off the labor of another—giving no exchange value—is to live off another's life. This it is that constitutes parasitism and applies to the rich as well as the poor, to the woman as well as the man.

There appears to be a concerted effort on the part of the ultra-feminists of today to make both the unmarried girl and the married wife feel that to be dependent for support upon father or husband is to play the part of a parasite. Their present position in the home is assailed as being unworthy of the enlightened, "new" woman. Specious arguments are used to convince them that failure to do productive work in the economic world, similar to that done by father and husband, is to fail to be self-supporting, which failure places woman in the position of a social parasite.

The modern wife, therefore, is exhorted to go with her husband into productive work, leaving her home, if need be, to the care of professional mothers, who, she is told, are better fitted to care for them than is she.

* * *

In this plan the husband and wife are to share and share alike the household expenses, including the care of the children, the remaining moneys earned by each to be used for individual and personal needs.

They plead that the wife, realizing the dignity that comes to the wage earner, will then command from her husband that respect which is accorded an economic equal, and which she fails to receive under present conditions.

They urge that in this way woman, by a single stroke, will leave the ranks of the parasitic class and become—for the first time—a self-supporting human being.

It is beginning to be very clear to the thoughtful mind that the wife and mother should cease to be regarded as a pensioner upon the bounty of her husband, or as a child unable to earn her right to live. That the remedy for such conditions can only be found by the destruction of the family as an economic unit is not so clear. Many are seeing that a deeper solution than the one indicated must be found.

If it is the family, and not the individual, that is the true social unit, then in matters economic there must be found a solution making for mutual interdependence rather than of independence. Before the question will be satisfactorily answered.

If, as we are told, "the man is not without the woman, or the woman without the man," in things spiritual and moral, then the same rule must hold good in the material and economic relation of man to woman in the family life.

* * *

Ruskin has said that "home is wherever a good woman lays her head." This is true, and more: Woman not only makes the home; she is the home itself—the literal home of the unborn race. Before any of the sons of men come to the waiting arms of mother-love she has been to them food and shelter and clothing for days and weeks and months—a home of living, breathing flesh and blood and bone—a "tabernacle not made with hands."

Because woman is the home in a very literal sense, the supreme place for her highest self-expression must always be in the home. And this, too, whether it be the individual home where, as mother, she tends and guides her little brood, or in the larger home, where, as counsellor and comrade, she shares with the man the burdens of a nation or of a state. She is yet in her sphere, the interior sphere we designate as home. It is here, therefore, if anywhere, that she must find her true economic independence.

Science for Workers

Q.—"Mind formed electrons. Very well. What mind; or was it many minds? Is there more than one mind? How many electrons in one inch?"—FRANK P. DAVIS.

A.—I have published for years that mind created electrons and formed them into matter. That mind I call Creative Mind, for mind alone is able to create. I do not know what mind is, so must content myself with a theory, totally opposite to a belief, of which I have none. My theory is that only one mind exists, and that all other apparent minds are parts or fractions of the one original mind.

I did not start up this theory; it is one of the oldest known to speculation or philosophy. I heard of it in early youth and have accepted it as a theory since. If humans could force electrons into a straight line side by side in contact, but this is impossible since they repel, then a row one inch long would contain 12,700,000,000,000. My theory is that only electrons have created; all else formed.

Q.—"In a recent issue you theorize that there is a flow of energy from sun to earth on straight lines. While a ray is traversing the distance from sun to earth, the earth moves on its orbit. Hence this ray could not have travelled in a straight line, like the spoke of a wheel, but slightly curved, like the tubes of a turbine wheel?"—A. NORTON.

A.—All energy traversing space, known to science, moves in straight lines. The rays of light are absolutely straight in space; and are not bent aside—refracted—unless they traverse some refracting medium, such as glass or quartz, if transparent. Light requires 499 seconds to traverse the 92,832,000 miles from the sun to the earth.

The earth's mean speed on its orbit is 18.4527 miles per second. And while energy is making its flight from sun to earth the earth moves over an arc of its orbit whose length is 9,231 miles. Then it hits a straight line of energy that left the sun 499 seconds before. But energy does not appear as light and heat until it hits matter.
